Knox Urges Adoption Of Training Measure

Declares United States Facing Most Serious Crisis of History; Sees England as Last Friend.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary Knox urged the house military committee today to approve compulsory military training legislation because if England should be defeated "we will be left without a friend in the world."

Repeatedly asserting that the United States faced the most serious crisis in history, the navy secretary asserted:

"In the event that England goes down—and I pray to God that that won't happen—we'll be left without a friend in the world."

However, Knox said in event of a British defeat, there would not be an immediate attack on the United States but rather a German effort to "calm our fears" and to "interrupt preparedness measures we are taking."

Knox recalled that on July 2 he had said a 300,000-man army would be adequate with a two-ocean navy.

"That was said before the collapse of France," he added. "What I may have said about a land force then does not apply."

He testified that "even if we weren't confronted with imminent menace, the principle underlying this legislation is sound."

"Faced with a very grave crisis as we are—and it is impossible to exaggerate the gravity of that crisis," he declared, "we must supply trained men if we are going to use these instruments we are buying at such a great cost."

Ten senators, thus far non-committal, were reported today to hold the fate of opposition efforts to compel a substantial modification of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

Mansfield Couple Hurt When Autos Collide While One Tries to Pass Truck.

One Automobile Upsets, Truck and Other Car Crash Into Roadside Ditches.

Seven persons two of them Mansfielders, were injured in a collision involving two automobiles and a transport truck on Route 30-N, two and a half miles east of Crestline at dusk last night.

State highway patrolmen said that an automobile driven by Duncan Cowan, 57, of 307 North Mulberry street, collided with another driven by Herman Stern 57, of Garrett, Ind., as the Cowan automobile attempted to pass the truck. Cowan failing to see Stern's car approaching from the opposite direction.

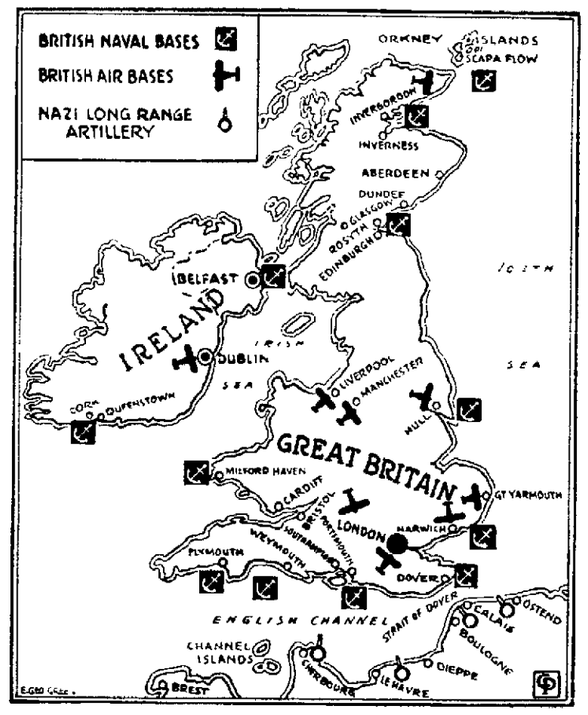
Nazis Hammer at British Bases



Full force of German bombing attacks has been loosed at British naval bases throughout the British Isles. Target of one of the heaviest attacks was the vital naval base at Portsmouth, on England's southeast coast. The most important naval and air bases in the isles are shown in the above map. Air fields have not been heavily bombed, probably because the German high command plans to use them for the landing of its own blitzkrieg troops.

DROPS NUMBERS RACKET INQUIRY

Marriott Inferentially Admits It Operates Here But Says 'It Isn't a Crime.'

After questioning several unnamed persons allegedly connected with the numbers racket in Mansfield, County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said today that he was "convinced that it had no "ramifications outside the city" and that he was dropping his investigation.

Asked if he intended to do anything about the alleged racket in Mansfield he said "No. I'm satisfied that the local police can handle the situation for whatever it's worth. So far as the charge made in Norwalk last week that Mansfield was headquarters for a numbers combine operating in this section of the state, I think someone was making a mountain out of a mole hill."

While inferentially admitting that his questioning had brought out the fact that the numbers racket is being operated here, he said there was nothing sinister about it, that so far as he could learn "no city officials were mixed up in it," and that anyway, it isn't a felony but "merely a misdemeanor."

"It isn't a crime," he said, "I would put it in the same class as drunkenness, fighting or disorderly conduct — all misdemeanors but not felonies."

He said that if there were numbers games being operated in

Last 'Phone Pole Taken Away From Business District

The last telephone pole in the immediate down town business district "bit the dust" yesterday when it was cut down at the southeast corner of West Fourth and Walnut streets.

It had not been used for telephone wires for a number of years, according to City Electrician Ernest Adams, who said today that he had been "trying for 10 years to get that one pole down." The communication wires were routed away from the business district a number of years ago.

The traffic signal light at Fourth and Walnut was the excuse for keeping the pole standing long after all other poles had given way to the march of progress. Now the guy wires for the traffic light are anchored to two business buildings on opposite corners.

In place of the old telephone pole there will be a steel standard on which there will be installed a new fire alarm box, Adams said. This will make two new ones in that section of the city with another one scheduled for Third and Walnut.

OWN DENTIST

Lion Operates on Self, Zoo Peaceful Again.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — (AP) — When "Whiskers," venerable park zoo lion, got a bone lodged on a lower tusk while chewing a steak, he raised such a fuss that the custodian enlisted police aid in an attempt to tope the animal for a tooth-picking operation.

But "Whiskers," figuring it might hurt a little, shied of dental work and raced frantically about the cage. Finally he knocked his head against a bar and out popped the bone. Peace and order was the rule once more in the animal house.

Owes Hospital, Husband's Plea for Treatment of Ailing Wife Rejected

Regular Payments Being Made on Bill, Muny Court Says.

A Mansfield foundry worker whose wife is ill in bed, was seeking assistance for his wife from city officials today after General hospital attaches turned a deaf ear to his plea for attention because he is indebted to the institution for previous services.

Told that needed X-rays could not be taken until he paid an $80 balance at the hospital the man said he had gone to city officials for help but was turned down because he lives just outside the corporation lines.

The father of two small children, the man is employed in a local foundry and said his earnings amount to about $20 a week. He said he had lost two days work the past week attempting to get hospital assistance for his wife.

According to the man's story his wife was taken ill about a year ago and had to have an operation. His small earnings were insufficient to meet all the expense and he entered into trusteeship in municipal court, agreeing to pay a certain amount of his weekly wages towards settlement of his bills.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch said court records showed that the man had been making payments regularly and that the balance due the hospital was $80.

The physician attending the woman stated that he had requested the hospital to take the X-rays but had been turned down due to the man's financial standing with the institution.

Supt. A. O. Fonkalsrud, however, said the hospital had received no request for the pictures other than the request made by the worker himself.

Stressing that the hospital 'must watch the pennies,' Fonkalsrud said the case was one which should be taken care of by the township. He added that if there "really is an emergency, we will take the pictures."

The man who said he had been caring for his children while his wife was confined said:

"I don't want relief from anyone. I'm willing to pay for the services if it takes me the rest of my life."

DUCE'S ARMY ADVANCES IN AFRICAN WAR

British Report Situation as Serious But Not Yet Grim or Critical.

'STOUT RESISTANCE'

Italians Attack in Large Numbers, Using Tanks and Bombing Planes.

BULLETIN

ROME — (AP) — Il Giornale D'Italia reported today that the British fleet had left Aden, Arabian port across the gulf from Berbera, toward which Italian troops are fighting in Somaliland. Although unable to explain the fleet actions, the paper said there was "intense movement in the gulf of Aden."

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Italian advances have created a serious situation in British Somaliland, it was officially admitted today despite announcement that the British navy had successfully bombarded Italian coastal concentrations.

The situation, however, is by no means grim or critical, officials declared.

The Italians were described as throwing everything they have into the advance, while the British are resisting stoutly.

"The public must not be surprised to learn of Italian successes, although at present time there is no reason to believe that Berbera will fall," a spokesman said.

The Italians are attacking in large numbers along a wide front with vigor and determination, it was said, using infantry supported by tanks, preceded by low-flying and machine-gunning bombers.

They have made a deep penetration at only one place, however, according to a military spokesman. They captured two guns and the situation at this point "has not been restored," it was said.

On the coast, the Italians reached Lukhaiyak about 100 miles from Berbera.

Light naval forces bombarded and dispersed Italian troops and mechanized transport concentrations, the announcement said, holding up an enemy advance on Bulhar.

O. S. R. Cell Waits Fugitive 'Tired Of Dodging Police'

A fugitive from the Ohio State reformatory who told officers he was tired of "dodging policemen," was held in the Franklin county jail today awaiting return here to complete a term for robbery.

He was identified as John Faught, 21, of Columbus last of four inmates who fled last September while working on the administration building outside the walls.

Faught voluntarily surrendered last night to Chief Deputy Sheriff Ralph G. Garner as the latter was leaving the jail and said:

"I want to be locked up."

Taking him into the jail, Garner said Faught then told him he escaped from the reformatory last fall and since that time had been working on farms in Kentucky and West Virginia. He said he had recently come to his sister's home in Columbus.

"Every time I saw a radio cruiser I trembled. I'm tired of it," Garner quoted the fugitive as saying.

Faught fled with three companions from a work gang repairing the administration building. They were later apprehended. Two days later, Glenn Hodges, from whom the four fled, resigned his position as guard. He had been serving a probationary appointment.

Three Fascist Towns Target Of R.A.F. Fliers

Berlin Has 47-Minute Scare; Leaflets Tell Axis Citizens Terror of War 'Now at Your Door'; Coast Air Battle Continues.

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)

Attacking in great waves, Nazi bombers set huge fires today in the area of Dover—channel "gateway" for a possible land invasion—and Berlin reported that British air defenses had failed to stop the raiders.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Eleven German airmen were reported captured in England's industrial Midlands today after they had left tell-tale parachutes behind them. Seven were captured in one group, four in another.

Britain carried the war in the air to the rooftops of her axis enemies today, raining death-dealing cargoes of bombs on Italian cities and throwing a 47-minute air raid scare into residents of Berlin.

Far-roving squadrons of the Royal Air Force, whose combat forces at home have sustained the lash of a three-day aerial blitzkrieg, dropped tons of high-explosives and incendiary bombs on Milan, Turin and other Fascist cities, killing 22 and wounding more than 50 others.

"War with its terror now is at your doors," said leaflets dropped by night raiders from the island kingdom.

Despite murky weather, Nazi warplanes attacked Britain's great industrial Midlands during the night and returned again early this afternoon for a fierce, large-scale attack on the already bomb-scarred south coast.

RAF defense squadrons clashed with the raiders in dogfights involving 150 planes, and spectators on the shore saw at least four planes crash into the sea in flames.

Anti-aircraft guns hammered at the Nazi craft, which attacked barrage balloons and sank a channel lightship with a six-plane salvo of 12 bombs.

Other German raiders swarmed along the coast in numbers approaching the 500 which stormed Britain's first-line coastal defenses yesterday. About 300 planes fought all along the south coast.

British destroyers also went into action in the heightening struggle.

The admiralty reported two British craft engaged six armed German trawlers and three E-boats (torpedo-carrying speedboats) and scored hits on three ships before the Germans fled behind a smokescreen.

A Nazi trawler and one E-boat were believed sunk, the admiralty said.

Coincidently, the British air ministry reported 140 German planes were "definitely destroyed" and 140 others "probably destroyed" in the last two days of intensive raiding.

WINNING: Writer Declares Britons Meeting Test In Air

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—Britain so far is winning her ordeal by air, according to all appearances in London today.

Now, for the first time the Royal Air Force is destroying more German planes daily than the German factories are producing, if British reports on the results of the current fighting are accurate and if neutral estimates of German airplane production are correct.

The British claim they knocked down 78 German planes in the last 24 hours. This means a rate of destruction which, if continued for a month, would account for 2,124 enemy machines.

Experts in London believe that Germany is now producing about 1,800 planes a month.

This calculation has nothing to do with the probable course of the "airblitz" since Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief of the German air force, is estimated to have around ten or twelve thousand warplanes of all kinds to use for an invasion attempt.

And, the British believe, he probably would be willing to sacrifice half of them if necessary.

Meanwhile Britons are displaying either amazing courage or shocking complacency in the face of the gravest danger that has threatened these isles since the Norman conquest.

There is neither the nervousness they displayed at the outbreak of the war nor the near panic they showed when France collapsed.

A year ago everybody carried a gasmask when it was unnecessary.

Today not one person in 20 carries a gasmask—at a time when it is considered possible that Germany at any moment may blanket London and other cities with enough poison to exterminate the population.

Get Child Ready for School Days

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

If you have a child entering the first grade at school next fall he will be supposed to learn to read. Reading will be his major learning experience throughout the primary grades. Indeed, most of his school work, even if he finally goes to college, will be reading. If he becomes a good reader in his first years at school the rest of his school life should be relatively easy for him.

What might you do between now and September to contribute toward his reading success as he enters school? First be sure his hearing and vision have been checked by an expert.

Read Aloud

You had better not teach him directly to read this summer. If you have not been reading to him over a number of years, begin at once to do so. An older brother or sister might also read to him. Let all reading to the child be for his pleasure, not a chore. It will be well to show him at times that you read from left to right, running your finger along the page.

As the little child looks at the illustrations on the page while you read to him, what he hears will take on a richer and richer meaning for him. He inevitably will long for the time when he can read such stories for himself. Hearing interesting words, phrases and sentences over and over again, he gains patterns of effective expression. His imgaination is fired. He learns to concentrate and pay attention. This habit will be very useful to him at school.

The ABCs

It might be well to make him familiar with all or part of the alphabet. His play with alphabet blocks should help. Set the stage so he will ask the name of the letter. For you to ask him might make the learning a chore and dull his interest. In case he likes to draw and print, it might be well to encourage him to print a few letters, following a large neat copy you make.

Knowing the letters should help him with the initial sounds of words as he begins to read, you might draw such simple-line large pictures as baseball bat, bucket, beet, with the name of each pictured object printed large under the picture.

Try Typing

If you have a typewriter let him type a few letters and words on it, showing him how to do so carefully.

We'll also to print clearly in very very large letters on a cardboard the name of a familiar object about the house, as chair, and fasten the placard to the object, calling it often to his attention. Add more of such cards gradually.

But the best thing you can do for your child between now and September is to read to him every day from well-illustrated books. You should be able to borrow good ones from the public library. I shall be glad to send you a list of books to read to the baby and young child if you will write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My mother-in-law's frigid lofty tone contradicted her words, and indicated emphatically that she did not believe I had any intention of explaining the barring of her windows which had so upset her. But she had paused, and given me an opportunity to reply to her, and I promptly seized it.

"That is exactly why I am here," I said. "There have been such startling developments in this affair of Jack Leslie that my father is taking every precaution possible. He expects the final act of this real life drama to be played either tonight, tomorrow night, or the night after that, and is seeing to it that no possible entrance is left unguarded. I have had no chance until now to come and outline the plans to you, but I am here now and I have much to tell you, including something which I wish you can do for us."

Her face lost its frosty loftiness, and a sparkle of interest came into her eyes.

"Of course I shall do everything I can," she said. "I trust I shall always co-operate in every way I can with your father's plans. I simply do not like being kept in the dark. But, if, as you say, you had a reason for your delay in telling me, I shall be very glad to listen to it. Come in and sit down."

The Hidden Stairway.

Vividly before me was my father's caution against dropping any hint concerning the hidden stairway to the attic, up which he was sure Jack Leslie would lead his gangsters into a trap, believing us to be ignorant of the two-century-old secret. But I knew that I had not been wholly successful when my mother-in-law, after surprisingly waiting until I had finished my story, looked at me with questioning shrewdness in her keen eyes.

Grows Suspicious.

"You haven't told me everything," she said. "There's something behind all this. Does your father expect them to come in gyroscopes and land on the roof? Is that the reason why he's clearing the upper floors every night, and putting us down in the library? There's no other explanation that I can see."

"I wouldn't know," I said quietly. "Father doesn't give much explanation of his plans you know. He only issues orders. All Lillian and I gathered from his directions was that he feared Leslie might be planning to set fire to the farmhouse in someway."

"How could he?" she demanded. "If he and his gang try to break through the strong cordon of guards your father has set around the farmhouse, they'll have all they can do to get as far as the door, let alone set fire to the place. No, your father must have found out that some of the gang have tunneled their way beneath the cellars and are planning a surprise attack. And—do you know what I think? That Edith Fairfax is in cahoots with Leslie, and is planning to let him into the farmhouse. You ought to have her watched every minute."

Urges Caution.

"Oh! I am sure Edith never would—" I began hurriedly, but my mother-in-law put a sudden stop to my protests.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, August 15.

Surprising, unpredictable, dramatic are terms best analyzing the events and circumstances of this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects of the higher orbs of astrological science. The element of the sudden, unforeseen and thrilling may be looked for in all phases and angles of human experience, romantic, emotional, spiritual and intellectual, which may attain high levels of creative expression. However this mysterious, occult and cryptic state of affairs is sure to be paralleled by basic developments of a purely earthy, material and practical nature not to be neglected.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of such strange, curious, marvelous and intriguing nature as will exalt the faculties, incite dynamic thrills to the emotions, and give firm and secure foundations to the material and commonplace adventures in human experience. It may be a memorable year, of outstanding critical situations to be settled. Use good judgment as well as rich and dependable higher guidance. Balance the practical and the abstruse.

A child born on this day should be practical, steady, trustworthy and industrious despite a high degree of spirituality, mysticism, emotionalism, with vague and intangible urges for transcendental expression. Drama, art, science, romance and adventure offer lofty fields for expression.

Regular Beauty Tryst Defies Time

By MME QUI VIVE

Old Meanie Time hurls days, weeks, months, years at you; they might as well be bricks for all the good they do to appearance. It is a wonderful satisfaction to a woman to realize that she is standing up under the bombardment of birthdays. When the old friend comes along and says: Gracious! You don't look a day older than you did ten years ago," you may not believe her, you may suspect flattery, but something warm swells up inside your chest.

The beauty class need not be told that physical and mental health are the real weapons in the 100-year war against time. We've harped on that subject over and over again. Fresh air, sunshine, wholesome groceries, refreshing sleep, the daily bath are all the "must haves." But certain little chores accomplished each day take a swipe at the old enemy with the scythe and the long white whiskers.

If you can spare thirty minutes at bedtime you'll beat the beauty game. Be faithful to this tryst with yourself. It is the steady plodder who does her home beauty work who gets rewards, not the stop-and-go girl.

Into your bath robe. Remove makeup with a light cream or cleansing oil. Wipe away the first application, sweep on a fresh one, let it remain. Tuck your precious ringlets under the bath cap. Fill the tub with water fairly warm; moist heat takes the weariness out of the muscles. You're getting yourself ready for a restful night's sleep.

Use a heavy brush for the soapy scouring. It stimulates the circulation, assists the skin to function normally as an organ of elimination. Have the bathroom steamy for the sake of your complexion. Oil and moist heat together do the facial coating a world of good.

Turn on the shower or the spray, have the water tepid, then cold. If you don't react to cold water, stick to the tepid rinse. Use a heavy towel friction quickly. Give yourself a rubdown with bath tonic or powder.

EXTRA TRICKS THRILL

TRICKS WHICH you never expected to take, but which come to you through precise play of the cards, can produce a greater thrill than those thrown at you by erring opponents. After West led the spade 10, South saw as apparently sure tricks only two in that suit, three in hearts, two in diamonds and two in clubs, just enough for game, but plenty of chances for extras, so he went for them. He covered the lead with dummy's J, and after East's K went on, he overtook with the A. Figuring that the 10 might be from a 10-9 doubleton, he led his spade 3 to find out. His hope realized, he took the 9 with Dummy's Q, then led the 2 for a marked finesse of the 6, followed by the A for four tricks in the suit.

Next the diamond 10 was passed by West and won by the K. When East switched to the club 3, he discarded his club K, hoping East had the Q. This gave declarer the rest of the tricks. If West had kept his club K and discarded a heart, the dummy would have used his last three hearts for the final tricks. All told, South made a small slam, losing only one trick, to the diamond K.

CHAPTER XVII.

Insidious rythm was throbbing against Marilyn's ears. Muted drums and a clicking sound, at once sharp and silken. Conga.

"You can take your head out of the sand now, Duchess," Al said encouragingly. "Better look around and get your bearings. Blondie is parked at the bar and she'll be there for several rounds. Herman Hess is buying bubbles with a dash of bitters and a maraschino cherry in them. Giddy-ap, Herman, you're going fine!"

"Clara at the bar? She hasn't seen us?"

"Not yet. She's giving us a very expansive and intimate view of her back. The bar is over there, to the left."

Marilyn looked at a long curve of crystal behind which fantastic plumes and mazes of green water plants were a garden for tropical fishes that might have been fragments of a rainbow dropped into a coral cove.

"I don't see Clara," she said, with relief, when she had quested the curve from end to end.

Al said, dryly, "We'll have to get you a set of lorgnettes, Delovely. The bright lights blind little ladies like you. Note the number in the flame-colored dress near the center of the curve. The one with the black butterfly sitting on top of her taffy head. Anything familiar about the picture?"

Relief swelled to a chuckle in Marilyn's throat.

"I'll treat you to a pair of dark glasses out of my first pay check," she told Al. "Bright lights have positively dazzled you. Or maybe Clara has worried you so much you're having multiple vision."

"Sa ay," Al gave the woman at the bar a searching look, "Blondie is putting it over! Why, she's so set up her own sister doesn't know her."

"Very well," indulgently, "if you must clown. Don't you suppose I know Clara when I see her. That woman's hair is shades lighter than sister's. As for the flame-colored gown- obviously it is a gown the combined Marsh girls' wardrobes wouldn't pay the designer who thought up that creation."

* * *

At that moment the flame woman at the bar turned her head so that she faced her companion, the pudgy man at her right. Her profile came into clear view. The stem of a wide frosted glass was slipped between the first and middle fingers of her hand so that she cupped the bowl in her palm. She raised the glass to her lips with a theatrical gesture.

"Clara!" Marilyn's cheeks went as pale as the orchids that flecked one of them. "Al, it can't be—there's some mistake—it's the lights—they're playing tricks—"

Al warned, "Take it easy, pal. You're not seeing ghosts. The only hants around this place are the ghosts of yesterday and they're dead. The one you think you see, the blond one is very much alive and sizzling."

"We've got to get her away from that man," Marilyn declared. "He's horrid. He's repugnant. Al, he's putting his hand on Clara's shoulder—her bare shoulder. I'm going over there this minute—"

"Oh, no you're not, Duchess." Al took Marilyn's hand, held it firmly to prevent her bolting. "All that would get you would be a scene, with you cast as the heavy. Use your head, honey-chile. Use your head. See the table next to us, the empty one? Hess leases it by the season. As soon as Clara decides she needs a new position for her spotlight they'll make for Hess's table. To get to it, they'll have to pass right by us. Then we'll see what we'll see."

"I hate waiting. That disgusting man—"

"It's hard to disgust gals like Blondie when they're looking through a dollar sign."

* * *

An hour passed. A desperate hour for Marilyn. A waiting hour with apprehension in every tick of the clock. A watching hour pregnant with possibility of disgrace for the family of Marsh or worse perhaps, for Clara. Drunkenness. Clara was getting more and more unsteady. Twice she spilled wine over the flame dress. Once she almost fell off the high stool on which she perched at the bar. Hess steadied her. His hand slid along her arm, lingered. Marilyn felt slightly ill.

It was after midnight when the pair at the bar decided to seek more comfortable quarters. They were coming toward the empty table now. Marilyn's throat was suddenly dry, constricted. Clara was hanging on the man's arm for support. She wasn't seeing where she was going. Her eyes failed to focus. Her face was blank, flushed to the color of her gown. The corners of her lips sagged. Marilyn started to speak as the flame woman passed the table where she sat with Al. Her voice would not function. She was frozen with fear, with shame. Too late! The moment was gone. Clara sat down heavily in a chair. A waiter pushed it forward to a proper distance from the table. All this Marilyn saw from a side glance. Clara was facing Al Martino.

"Great shakes, Duchess," Al lowered his voice for Marilyn's ears alone. "I was afraid you'd spill all the apples. Keep on holding tight. She's bound to notice us any minute now. Let her have the first line."

Scarcely had Al finished reassuring Marilyn when the flame woman's roving eyes reached the table immediately in front of her, stopped, blinked, widened, tried to regain their focus. She swayed tipsily, regained her balance, tried again to clear her blurred vision. Al thought, "I'll give her a lift. Maybe if I give her a tinkle she'll catch on." He smiled, a sardonic lifting of the brows that might pass for a smile, nodded his head in nonchalant greeting.

He had been right. The gesture of recognition penetrated the fog, but the flame woman's reaction was so far from what he had reckoned, so sudden, so violent, that it caught him completely off guard.

* * *

Clara, steadying herself against the table, rose, fixed eyes of blazing wrath on Al, and screamed hoarsely, "That man he's annoying me. Herman, he's insulted me. He's trying to pick me up—he made faces at me he's laughing at me - Herman, stop him—"

The pudgy man jumped to his feet, followed the direction of his companion's glare, strode closer to the befuddled Al.

"You young hoodlum," he sputtered, "I'll beat some manners into you. Get up from that table and git before I give you the beating you— —"

"I wouldn't try it if I were you." Al was calm now, steel calm. "You might get bruised. I happen to know the woman at your table, Clara Marsh. The young lady at my table is her sister."

Clara leaned forward, her voice rising like a siren of hate and unleashed passion. "He lies! I never saw him before! I have no sister! Herman stop him! He made faces behind your back! He— —"

Lashed by his companion's fury, the pudgy man lunged. There was a crash against the back of Al Martino's head. Al reeled, reached for support, crumpled slowly to the floor. Marilyn was aware of whirling lights, of crowding white faces, of muffled drums, of Clara screaming and screaming, and then—blank night.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—What will keep Shirley Temple off the New York stage next season, if anything does, is sentiment—her parents' sentiment. They have Shirley in a regular school now, where she's making friends with regular schoolmates after years of movie-set schooling, and they don't want to uproot her. . . . The money doesn't matter, and no fooling. . . .

Funny thing is that Nat Karson, the young Broadwayman who wants to co-star Shirley with Bill Robinson in a musical version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" (and has won at least the Temple interest), is sentimental too . . . "It's a question of a little girl and what's best for her," says Nat. "I know it, and I can't high-pressure them while I know it."

* * *

Not that it matters much at the moment, but film men are worrying about what they'll do five years from now when they need background scenes of old Europe. . . . Established practice has been to keep camera crews abroad replenishing libraries of canned shots for use in 'process' work as needed. . . . Even if Nazi authorities permitted American cameras to take shots in the "new Europe," the scenes would be changed—Nazi banners flying, old landmarks gone, trees missing, new buildings replacing bombed ones . . . Paramount is using "old Paris" scenes left over from "Midnight" for the "old Paris" of Claudette Colbert's 'Arise My Love" but is hard pressed for backgrounds in Compiegne forest, in Poland, Spain and Finland all required for the story.

Laird Cregar, who played "Oscar Wilde" here on the stage, will be in "Hudson's Bay Company" with Henry Fonda. . . . It's hard to believe, what with Frank Capra's interest in modern life, that he'll do "Don Quixote" after "Meet John Doe," but that's the word from headquarters . . . The satire on chivalry, of course, will have modern implications or it won't be Capra. . . . Ali was not roses between James Cagney and Anatole Litvak, his director on "City of Conquest." . . . After the finish, Cagney shook hands and said sincerely, "Working with you, Tole, has been quite an experience!" . . . Is there a better diplomat in the house? . . .

* * *

Groucho Marx, on the "Go West" set, discourses on the sad fate of "poor Marion," his wife for 20 years. "A comedian's wife hears over and over, in all sorts of locales and before all manner of people, the same niftes her husband tosses out to study audience reaction. . . . She not only must listen with apparent interest and amusement, but often she must leap into the breach to become the foil . . . She knows all the answers to his merry quips. . . . It's the comic's curse that he has to be 'funny' around other people. Unless he tries they say he's funny only when someone else writes his material. That's ruinous. . . . So he struggles to be a merry fellow and his wife suffers . . ." (Groucho is sobbing now.) "No wonder she becomes a great home lover and shudders at going out in public. At home the comic doesn't have to be funny."

F.B.I. Probes Lake Mystery Death of Alaska Woman

ROBBERY SEEN AS MOTIVE IN MURDER CASE

Woman Reported Missing From Boat Two Weeks After Body Discovered.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Federal bureau of investigation agents today studied the mysterious death of Mrs. Benjamin Mozee, 53, of Nome, Alaska, a government official's wife. Her body was found in Lake Erie two weeks ago but was identified only last night after a Great Lakes steamer reported her missing from her stateroom.

Officers of the steamship Seeandbee reported her disappearance, and several hours later the body of a woman washed ashore from Lake Erie July 31 was declared that of the missing passenger.

Identification was made by her brother, Frank R. Elliott of Cleveland, from clothing and jewelry on the bruised body found at Geneva-on-the-Lake, 50 miles east of here.

Authorities started an investigation to determine whether Mrs. Mozee had been robbed and slain after Elliott reported she carried "a large amount" of cash and wore three valuable diamond rings as she embarked on the Seeandbee July 29 for a Cleveland-to-Buffalo cruise.

Detective Gordon Shibley said these were not found in her stateroom and Coroner Charles Webster of Ashtabula county, where the body was buried, said a wedding ring and an ivory bracelet were the only jewelry found on the victim. These were the articles identified by Elliott, along with shoes purchased in Seattle and other clothing.

Elliott reported his sister was the wife of a U. S. marshal at Nome, and that she was en route to Brokfield Center, Conn., to visit relatives before going to Bellevue hospital in New York to become a surgery nurse.

Coroner Webster said the body taken from the lake bore severe bruises apparently not received while the victim was in the water, and that palms of both hands were covered with grease.

The Seeandbee had returned to Cleveland twice after Mrs. Mozee boarded the vessel, the ship's owner, Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Co., said her disappearance was not discovered earlier because she had occupied a little-used upper deck stateroom which had not been assigned to another passenger on subsequent cruises or entered for cleaning purposes.

Ohio Governor Has Powers of Draft In War

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Debate over conscription today prompted an inquiry into Ohio military law and disclosed that Gov. John W. Bricker has power in time of war, insurrection "or imminence of either" to draft into the National Guard all white male citizens between the ages of 18 and 45.

The law vesting the governor with this authority was enacted in 1917 and has never been repealed. Other than the stipulation that he may exercise this power upon a declaration of war, insurrection of a threat of either condition, it places no limitation upon his discretion.

The act is based upon a constitutional provision which states:

"All white male citizens, residents of this state, of 18 years of age and under the age of 45 years, shall be enrolled in the militia and perform military duty in such manner not incompatible with the constitution and laws of the United States, as may be prescribed by law."

RITES THURSDAY

John Sabo, 71, Succumbs at Home After Long Illness.

John Sabo, 71, rear 132 Grace street, died at the Richland county home last night after a lingering illness. He was a resident of Richland county 18 years. Mr. Sabo had no known survivors.

The body was removed to the Finefrock funeral home where services will be held at 10:30 a. m., Thursday. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Miss Eleanor Bond, director of Mansfield Girl Scouts, who is on vacation this month, is combining business with pleasure. Miss Bond is making a bicycle tour through the New England states, starting in Vermont with three girl companions. Each night they plan to reach one of the many youth hostels which have sprung up in that district. She will compile data on how the hostels are started, how they operate and are financed, as she is interested in getting them started in the middle west and especially in Ohio. They are taverns or inns where young people can stay for as low cost as 25 cents, buying their food of farmers and cooking it themselves.

"Pandemonium" would be a mild word to describe the activity which took place at Miller Guiher's grocery on Lexington avenue during the final innings of the Cleveland-Detroit game yesterday. Guiher, who is one of the Indians most ardent supporters, had the radio turned on full blast when the Tribe tied up the score in the eighth inning, and one of the clerks became so excited that instead of cutting off one banana from the stalk hanging over the counter he cut down the entire bunch.

BOSTON—(AP)—Henry J. Ackroyd, tourist information expert on Boston common, is quick on the trigger.

A Canadian inquired about Bunker Hill. Ackroyd gave him the usual story of the "Red Coats" and the "whites of their eyes."

"You know mister," aid the Canadian, "up in Canada, we've got one of the guns the British captured that day at Bunker Hill."

Cracked Ackroyd, after a moment:

"Yes, but we've still got the hill."

HUNT MINERALS IN BEACH SAND

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—A prosaic future may be in store for the shores of Florida. The bathing beauties may give way to mine shafts and smelting plants. The glistening sands may be broken to tiny pieces and washed out to sea—and all for a few minerals.

Prof. W. R. Phelps is the man to blame for the possible change in the state of things. For more than a year he has been studying the sands of the Sunshine State, and has discovered that they contain appreciable quantities of four valuable minerals—zircon, ilmenite, rutile and monazite—all rare and all useful in our present-day industries.

OHIO PAINTERS HIT COMMUNISTS

Four Cleveland Delegates to Union Convention Ousted as Alleged Reds.

SANDUSKY—Ejection of four Cleveland delegates with the avowed intention of weeding out Communists brought discord into the conference of the AFL Ohio State Painters' Council at nearby Cedar Point today.

Barred from council sessions yesterday on the ground they are members of the Communist party were Courtney D. Ward, day secretary of the Cleveland district painters' council; Max Goldlust, president of a Cleveland local; Fred Fiala and Harry Lieberman. All denied connections with the party.

Trent Longo of Cleveland, president of the state council, announced the action, asserting: "This is just the start of the American Federation of Labor's effort to weed out Communists from the ranks of organized labor."

Forty-five conference delegates voted to eject the four Cleveland representatives after the conference credentials committee presented affidavits describing them and 17 other Cleveland unionists as Communists.

Longo said the Ohio State Building Trades Council and the Ohio Federation of Labor would be asked to take similar action against the four at their conferences opening at Cedar Point within the next week.

In denying Communist party membership, ousted delegates charged in a statement prepared for presentation today that the conference was being "run by a gang of labor fakers."

"Actions of the conference tend to destroy any democracy there may be in the American Federation of Labor," the statement added.

TENNESSEE, NORTH CAROLINA FLOOD DESTROYS MANY HOMES

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. —(INS)—Many persons were feared today to have lost their lives in a flood caused when a dam gave way near Pineola, N. C., loosing a torrent of water on several Tennessee and North Carolina towns.

There was only one known flood victim, Mrs. Bob Shell, 64, who was drowned at Elizabethton when the car in which she was seated was caught in the rush of water.

The fate of scores of persons was unknown, however, and many homes were in ruins with their occupants unreported.

Blocked highways and disrupted communication lines made it impossible to check all the stricken localities immediately.

Source of the flood, according to authorities, was a private lake on the estate of H. C. Morman, about 35 or 40 miles northeast of Elizabethton.

Weakened by several days of torrential rain which swept through the Carolinas in the wake of Sunday's hurricane, the dam impounding the lake gave way, emptying the entire lake into the already swollen Watauga river. A veritable wall of water swept down the Watauga, inundating the countryside and parts of riverside towns.

Warning of the advancing flood preceded the racing waters from point to point down the river through Newland, N. C., Granberry, N. C., and to Elizabethton, giving many lowland residents time to reach higher ground. However, several sources expressed fears a number of lives had been lost at Elizabethton, the sheriff's office reported.

SAY ELECTION DEPENDS UPON VOTE SWINDLE

Hit Big City Machine Policy as Backbone of Enemy Political Power.

(By Associated Press)

COLORADO SPRINGS—Wendell L. Willkie nodded agreement as Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, told a press conference yesterday:

"President Roosevelt's re-election depends to a great extent upon how many fraudulent votes can be cast by the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, the Hague machine in Jersey City and Boss Flynn's machine in the Bronx.

"I believe it is the policy of the administration to rely on these machines to cast as many fraudulent votes as possible."

Willkie, the Republicans' 1940 nominee, said he agreed thoroughly. Landon was his guest.

Willkie settled down today to complete the acceptance address he will deliver Saturday in his home town, Elwood, Ind. Although the address virtually was finished last night, Willkie said he wanted to make a few minor revisions before sending it to the printer.

A major section of the speech is expected to deal with military conscription. While rumors have circulated here that the nominee favors the idea, there has been no word from Willkie.

The Republican nominee, after talking with Landon, told his press conference that approximately $640,000 collected by the Democratic national committee for advertising in campaign books should be returned to corporations.

Unless the money is returned at once, Willkie added in a statement, corporations should demand recovery of the money and bring suit to get it if it is not repaid.

"I will keep after this thing until they pay back this money," Willkie asserted. "The collections this year were not only a violation of the Hatch law but previous collections have been a direct violation of the corrupt practices act.

"It is one of the most sinister things that could happen. That it should not be done is just a matter of plain, common honesty."

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Justice department officials indicated today in guarded private comment that there was little likelihood of prosecution for purchasers of the Democratic 1940 campaign book in the event that the Democratic national committee decides to sell the volume despite the Hatch act.

One official said that prosecution under a law which could impose a maximum $5,000 fine or five years in prison on a person who merely bought a 25 cent campaign book was "an impossible situation."

FILES ACTION

Conservancy District Seeks Title to Richland Land.

The Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district had filed an action today in common pleas court seeking title to three acres of land and a flood easement on 55 acres owned by Carrie B. Hout in Mifflin township.

The land is in the Charles Mill conservancy district and is needed for flood prevention purposes, the petition states. Sixteen acres are below the spillway of the Charles Mill dam.

Action was started by the conservancy district after it was unable to reach an agreement with the property owner on a purchase and easement price.

The conservancy board asks that a jury be drawn to set a fair price for the land. Atty. John C. O'Donnell represents the board.

Southpaw Smith Boys Clash as Tribe Meets White Sox

Tribe Picks Up Two-Game Lead Over Detroit

Ray Mack Scores Winning Run In Last of Ninth To Give Cleveland 6-5 Victory.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland fans have stopped holding their hats—they're sailing them onto the playing field now that the Indians have tucked away first place and a two-game lead over Detroit.

The Tribe moves into Cleveland stadium tonight (and high time, too, say the fans who haven't been able to get even standing room at the less capacious League park) for the opener of a two-game series with the Chicago White Sox.

The southpaw Smith boys—Al for Cleveland and Edgar for Chicago—start on the mound.

The Indians relied on no tricks yesterday as they knocked off the Tigers 6 to 5 to sweep the short series. An error helped but hitting in the pinches counted, too.

* * *

Dutch Meyer, Detroit's rookie second baseman, fumbled Ben Chapman's smash in the last inning and Ray Mack, who had singled and advanced on a sacrifice and another hit, raced home with the winning run.

* * *

Held to two hits in the first six innings by Johnny Gorsica, the Indians clubbed him for two more in the seventh before Al Benton replaced him. Benton yielded four more safe blows.

Harry Eisenstat, last of five Cleveland pitchers to face the Tigers, pitched to only one batter but was credited with the victory. He retired Pinchhitter Pete Fox. Detroit collected nine hits, six of them off starter Mel Harder in six innings, two off Johnny Humphries and one off Joe Dobson. Bill Zuber, the other Cleveland hurler who saw service, allowed none but walked two men.

Today Cleveland is farther out in front than it was 20 years ago when it won its only pennant. On the same date in that year Cleveland was tied with the New York Yankees in games and led by only four percentage points.

Long Bar Club Adds to Lead In Golf League

Here are the members of the pace-making Long Bar team just before they teed off in weekly matches in The News-Journal Class A golf league at Possum Run yesterday. The Barmen marked up a 2 to 1 win over the Oak's club. Left to right are, Carl Kushin, Johnny Carr, Oscar Frantz and Harry Fay. Carr and Fay paced the team with a pair of 38's. The Long Bar holds a seven-point lead in the circuit championship race.

Gehringer, Tigers' Key Man, Rides Bench While Club Slips

By BILL WHITE

THE Detroit Tigers, desperately trying to stay in the thick of the American league pennant fight, apparently are no stronger than Charley Gehringer—and their peerless second sacker is riding the bench at the moment.

The pennant hopes of the Bengals are built around their infield, and the infield, for more years than the oldest native can recall, has been built around Gehringer.

But Charley's aging legs "ain't what they used to be." As a result the Tigers find themselves two full games back of the Cleveland Indians, and with a record of four straight losses. The second straight setback to the Tigers came yesterday 6-5.

However, the cheering of some 16,128 Cleveland fans was drowned somewhat by the ominous rumble of the New York Yankees who looked like the old gang again as they smashed the Boston Red Sox 9-1 and 19-8. Marius Russo pitched five hit ball to win the first one and Joe DiMaggio showed younger brother Dominic of the Sox who was who in the family by smashing out a total of six hits in the two games, including a pair of homers in the afterpiece, which was called by darkness in the seventh.

The Chicago White Sox beat the Browns, 4-3, inspite of a revamped Brown lineup.

The Athletics bunched their hits effectively in the first and fifth innings to down the Senators 6-3 in a night game.

The Cincinnati Reds managed to stave off the Pepny Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3.

The Giants lost to the Boston Bees by 4-1.

The St. Louis Cardinals crept to within a half game of the fifth place Cubs when they beat Chicago 5-1 behind Clyde Shoun's seven hit hurling.

The Dodgers and Phils were rained out with Brooklyn leading 3-0 at the end of the first inning.

Reds Depend On Moore In Today's Tilt

Whitey to Face Chicago Cubs; Thompson Tames Bucs, 4-3, in 10 Innings.

CHICAGO —(AP)— The league leading Cincinnati Reds, who have found the going tough in their recent baseball encounters, looked to hurler Whitey Moore to smooth their pennant pathway in the first of a three-game series with Chicago's Cubs today.

Moore, who blanked the St. Louis Cardinals in his last start, had pitcher Claude Passeau opposing him.

The way Cincinnati settled the Pirates with a ten-inning 4 to 3 decision yesterday gave many Rhinelanders cause for jubilation.

The Reds displayed their old-time punch eager observers said. The Bucs were coasting along behind a 3 to 1 lead going into the ninth and seemed headed for another victory.

Frank McCormick exploded the bombshell which turned the tables. He lined out the first pitch for his 16th home run of the year.

Ernie Lombardi singled, Johnny Goodman drew a pass and a sacrifice advanced the runners. Eddie Joost was passed, filling the bases. Harry Craft field out but Bill Werber drew a pass, forcing in the tying run.

In the tenth round Lonnie Frey walked, McCormick came up again and singled him to third. Ival Goodman clouted a long fly into rightfield to bring Frey in with the winning run, which put the Reds five games ahead of the second place Dodgers.

IF ANYONE wants to keep the Long Bar from winning The News-Journal Class A golf league championship they'll have to do something about it right away.

The Long Bar foursome moved closer to the title in the weekly matches at Possum Run yesterday by registering a 2 to 1 victory over the Oaks' club.

While interest centered on the Long Bar, Rollie Rachel walked off with individual scoring honors with a two-under-par 34. He scored the only point for the Oaks team.

* * *

The Richland Printers, defending champions, failed to pick up any ground as they dropped two points to the Barnes and Schmid Tires. Pete Linster of the Printers and Joe Mayer of the Tires both collected 35's and had to play two extra holes before Mayer emerged the winner.

* * *

In the other matches the Mansfield Athletic Supply beat Yuncker Sports, 2 to 1 and the Nite club topped Sloan's Drugs by a 2 to 1 count.

* * *

There were five postponed matches yesterday. If the Long Bar wins the two extra points from the Oaks club it will hold a nine-point lead going into the league's final matches next week.

Sons of Herman Register 6 to 5 Win in District Softball Tourney.

THE Sons of Herman successfully throttled an Amherst Eagles last-inning rally last night to mark up a 6 to 5 triumph in an opening round game of the district softball tournament at Elyria.

Sporting a 6-4 advantage going into the seventh, the Hermans saw their advantage threatened as Amherst scored a run, but Jimmy Fullager and his teammates settled down to retire the side without further trouble.

The Mansfield combine returns to Elyria to tackle the Faultless Rubber company and Mike Bodner in a second round tussle at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Manager Frank Beeber's outfit, which won the title last season, forged into the lead in the early innings, but the Eagles managed to knot the score at 4-all in the fourth.

A run in the last of the fourth, however, enabled the Hermans to move ahead again and they protected the advantage until the finish. The Hermans tallied what proved to be the winning run in the fifth.

Fullager, who gave up one walk and fanned six, didn't have much trouble with the losers until the fourth when they scored three times.

George Hummel led the Hermans' eight-hit attack with a pair of singles, while Harry Ross and Ed Henrich each added a double to the total.

RAIN FORCES CONN-PASTOR FIGHT POSTPONEMENT

NEW YORK — (AP) — Somebody threw cold water on the Billy Conn-Bob Pastor fight and as a result Mike Jacobs has a lot of work lined up for himself.

With rain pouring down yesterday afternoon Jacobs cast one eye at the weather reports, the other at the box office and decided to call off the scheduled 15-round battle at the Polo Grounds.

Braves Wallop Oilers

Mansfield Scores 11 Runs In Seventh to Mark Up 15 to 4 Triumph.

MANSFIELD moved closer to the .500 per cent mark in the standings in the Ohio State league race last night with a one-sided 15 to 4 triumph over Findlay before some 450 Mansfield Parks' association crowd at the Fairground under the floodlights.

It was the Braves' 46 victory against 48 defeats. Bob Snider was on the hill for the Mansfield club and coasted to his second straight win since joining the team.

Manager Dewey Stover was expected to select Bob Arnold or George Laurila to face the Pandas in the session scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m. today.

It was a good ball game last night until the Braves teed off for 11 markers in the seventh inning. In that frame 16 Braves walked to the plate. Mansfield pounded out eight hits.

The Braves held a 4 to 2 lead going into the last of the seventh and it looked like Findlay might cause some trouble. But after Mansfield did its damage in the seventh it was all over.

It was one of the most impressive victories chalked up by the Braves this season.

* * *

Don Wentz set the pace for the Braves at the plate last night with two triples, a double and a single in five official trips to the plate. Howard Beals added a double and two singles, while Herb Woodten cracked out a triple and single.

Ohio State, Notre Dame Players Dominate All-Stars

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The gridiron giants of these parts—Ohio State and Notre Dame got the most places today on the 35-man midwest college all-star squad which plays the Cleveland Rams here Sept. 4.

Except for a guy named Lee at one end, the Western Reserve university coaching staff could start an entire team of players from the two midwestern rivals without moving anyone from his natural position.

Ohio State trounced six winners and Notre Dame four in balloting for the third annual Cleveland News-American Legion charity contest. The national professional football leaguers won the first two games from Ohio all-star teams so the college eligibility list was widened this year. Altogether 20 schools got men on the squad in today's final tabulation.

DETROIT TEAM DOMINATES PLAY IN TITLE GAMES

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A powerful Detroit team which has steamrollered everything in sight in their drive for the International Printers baseball championship faced a team of Little Giants from New York today.

The Printer-Tigers blasted out a 11 to 2 decision over Cincinnati in yesterday's games. Behind Zaner's four-hit pitching New York slapped an 8 to 2 defeat on Indianapolis.

Canton Terriors Defeat Dayton

CANTON—(AP)—Canton's Terriers drew within one percentage point of a fourth place tie with the Dayton Wings in the Mid-Atlantic league last night by edging out a 4 to 2 victory to take the series two games to one.

Ed Albosta, Dayton hurler, allowed only four hits while Dud Cain walked nine Wing batters and was in trouble much of the time. Miscues gave Canton two unearned runs.

Rain at Charleston and Youngstown washed out the other scheduled games.

IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT COMBINATION ADVANCES

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Billy Friel and Charles Samson of Portsmouth advanced in the men's doubles division of the Ohio Valley Tennis tournament today with a decisive 6-2, 6-1 victory over two Cincinnatians, Bill Ruton and Web Hill.

ONLY 40 VETS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—40 men remain out of the Indiana Grand Army of the Republic which once numbered 18,000. Hardly one of the group is under 90 and most of them are over 93.

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—Harry Zink, the No. 2 seeded ace from Steubenville, O., defeated Ned Stafford of Niagara Falls, N. Y., 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, in the Great Lakes tennis tournament yesterday.

MOTOR, STEEL SHARES MARK UP RECOVERY

U. S. Steel, Westinghouse In List Heading Upturn; Bonds Are Mixed in Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK.—Steel and motor shares marked out a recovery path for the stock list today as selling lightened overnight.

Heading the upturn were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft.

Bonds mostly yielded for further small losses. Commodities were mixed.

A mounting backlog of unfilled armament orders for many firms was indicated in Washington announcements of the letting of additional contracts under the $10,000,000,000 defense program.

Weekly electric power output figures showed a moderate drop after the sharp gain in the preceding few weeks.

ITALIAN ARMY MAKES ADVANCE

British Report Situation as Serious But Not Yet Grim or Critical.

British guarantees of her independence and territorial integrity, it was learned in Budapest today.

Still hesitating, Premier John Metaxas instructed his minister in Moscow to determine Soviet Russia's attitude. The Greek envoy had a two-hour talk with Soviet Premier and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov and then reported back to Athens.

Molotov subsequently received Grigore Gafencu, new Rumanian minister to Moscow and the two then talked with Josef Stalin.

Diplomatic information in Budapest said that Metaxas was faced with a difficult dilemma. His is a choice between losing Britain's guarantees and exposing Greece to severe Italian reprisals.

Italy's demand was presented to Metaxas by the Italian minister to Athens in the form of a suggestion. Immediately afterward, the British envoy called to renew Britain's assurance of a continuing and effective guarantee.

Bitter Fighting In Somaliland

ROME—(INS)—Bitter fighting in British Somaliland and a heavy bombing of Milan and other Italian cities by enemy planes were announced by the Italian military bulletin today.

Twelve civilians were killed and 44 wounded in Milan, the communique charged. It said:

"A fierce engagement is going on in British Somaliland east of Adadleh. Our maneuver, although strongly opposed, is being carried out.

"At 1 a. m. enemy planes coming from Switzerland carried out air raids on northern Italy, throwing bombs and leaflets.

"In Milan 30 explosive bombs and incendiaries were hurled. All fell on the residential sector and no military objectives were hit. Twelve persons were killed and 44 wounded. All civilians.

"At Turin 15 bombs were dropped, but no damaged was caused to military or industrial structures. One person was killed and eight were wounded there."

(Editor's Note: A dispatch from Geneva told of an early morning air raid alarm there, stating unidentified planes were seen flying over Switzerland.)

Italo-Grecian Feelings Delicate

ROME — (INS) — Relations between Italy and Greece have entered a "delicate phase." Italian officials admitted today. There was no confirmation of reports that Greece was allowing Britain to use her ports and territory for military purposes.

STARTS 'WILD PARTY' HEARING

Judge Hears Witnesses In Case of Quartet Held on Conduct Charges.

After hearing testimony yesterday and today in the case of four adults arrested for holding "wild parties" and for "lewd, lascivious and adulterous" conduct before minor children, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today continued the case until tomorrow.

Judge Huston is hearing the case in the absence of Judge Charles J. Anderson, who is ill.

Arrested were Henry Schmidt, 33, his wife, Mary Schmidt, 28, who are the parents of three small children; Glenn Stelzer, 41, and Mrs. Fanny Hymes, 42, all of 480½ Newman street. Stelzer is a married man, officers said.

The four are charged in affidavits signed by Mrs. Barbara Schmidt and Mrs. Daisy Yunker, mother of Schmidt and Mrs. Schmidt, with staging "wild parties" and of adulterous behavior in the presence of the children.

Judge Huston said the Hymes woman had been in his court several years ago in an unsavory divorce case.

After hearing the testimony of Schmidt and his wife yesterday afternoon, Judge Huston permitted them to go home last night. He was questioning Stelzer and the Hymes woman today, who were kept in county jail last night. He said today that he wanted further evidence in the case.

Three Italian Towns Attacked by British

Berlin Has 47-Minute Scare as Britain Strikes Back In Retaliation for Raids on Island Kingdom.

The air ministry announced that the RAF's spectacular sortie into Italy caused "heavy damage" to aircraft factories at Milan and Turin.

At least 30 British planes were believed to have engaged in the attack—the first big smash at Italian cities since the war began—in a flight that carried them more than 1,200 miles round trip from England.

The air ministry said all returned safely, except one which made a forced landing a few miles from the English coast. Its crew was rescued.

Berlin reported that British raiders penetrated to the region of Potsdam, 20 miles west of Berlin, but were turned back by anti-aircraft fire before they could reach the capital.

Air-raid warnings sent Berlin residents bounding from bed to the safety of air-raid shelters, however, and residents of the capital's suburbs said they heard the sound of distant gun-fire.

The RAF raids in Italy left their sting at Milan, Turin, Alessandra and Tortona, all industrial centers in northern Italy. Augusta, in Sicily, also was bombed.

German bombers returned to the attack on England during the night and morning, blasting at the great industrial Midlands for several hours in the biggest assault there of the war.

On edge for an imminently expected land invasion, Britons experienced a mild alarm over reports that 11 German parachutists landed in the Midlands during the night and that seven of them were captured.

Aviation experts discounted the report, saying the parachutes found were not the type used by Nazi 'chutist troops in Holland, Belgium and France. They expressed belief that the 'chutes belonged to German aviators shot down by RAF fighters.

In yesterday's air war the British listed 78 raiders shot down and 13 British planes lost, making the totals for last Thursday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday: 265 German planes to 68 British.

The Germans reported 132 British planes downed to 28 German, with totals for the four days 363 British planes to 83 German.

Intense heat which may not let up until late August or early September still militated against any Italian attack from Libya into Egypt but Italians said their invading columns had pierced to within 50 miles of Berbera, key to British Somaliland.

Admiral Thomas Charles Hart, commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, arrived by submarine today at Shanghai to take a hand in the troubled affairs of the international settlement from which British troops are to be withdrawn.

Although Admiral Hart was not expected to attend a scheduled meeting of the foreign defense council tomorrow, his presence was viewed as strengthening the hand of American officials, who, it was understood, would oppose Japanese demands for control of the British sector.

In Rome, the Italian press hinted that the Greek island of Corfu and the entire Adriatic seacoast might be claimed by Italy as a sequel to the playing of an Albanian "patriot," allegedly by two Greeks.

This development followed accusations by Italian spokesmen that Greece had territorial designs on Albania, which Italy annexed in 1939.

Nazis Say British Planes Halted 12 Miles From Berlin

(By United Press)

BERLIN—German anti-aircraft guns turned back a British airplane fleet a little more than 10 miles west of Berlin early today, well informed Nazi sources said today in explaining a 47-minute air raid alarm.

The same informants said during the morning that no reports had been received of a continuation of German airplane attacks on the British Isles, but at 1 p. m. (6 a. m. EST) informants said that they "understood" that raids had been resumed this morning "in very favorable weather."

(London reported that there had been a sudden and as yet unexplained lull in German daytime raiding.)

Explaining the air raid alarm which startled Berliners from their sleep early today, informants said that British planes, flying at a considerable height, approached the Berlin area.

The planes were forced back "a dozen or so" miles west of the city without dropping their bombs, the informants said, so there was no anti-aircraft fire in the city.

Such alarms always are given when planes reach a certain designated "danger zone" around the capital, it was said.

The official news agency said that 71 British planes were shot down in air battles over the English channel and the British Isles, that 42 were destroyed by anti-aircraft guns over German territory or on the ground in German bombing attacks, and that 15 British bomber planes were destroyed by German planes and one was destroyed by anti-aircraft gun-fire during an attack on Aalborg, Denmark.

German planes yesterday and last night had "effectively" bombed a large number of "sea objectives" as well as arms factories and a "very large" number of airdromes in England, it was said.

Senate In Midst of 'Hot' Conscription Debate

This picture was snapped as the United States senate debated the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill which was attacked bitterly by oppositionists led by Senators Burton K. Wheeler of Montana and George W. Norris of Nebraska. Evidently, however, interest was lagging when the photo was taken, for many seats are vacant and several of the senators are wandering about the floor. Senator Key Pittman of Nevada is presiding from the rostrum, extreme right. Senator Matthew Neely of West Virginia leans over to talk to Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, lower left, and one unidentified solon exhibits a great deal of interest—in the newspaper he is reading, with his back to the rostrum.

CUDAHY SILENT

Ambassador to Belgium Waits Capital Conferences.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Still silent on the recent British interview which brought him an official state department rebuke, John Cudahy, U. S. ambassador to Belgium, was en route to Washington today for conferences with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Arriving by Clipper plane yesterday, Cudahy spent the night in New York with his family.

In the interview, Cudahy declared German soldiers in Belgium conducted themselves better than American soldiers might under similar circumstances and was quoted as stating the food situation in Belgium was serious.

ARK RECALLED

Schooner Built on Side of Mountain Far From Sea.

WATERBORO, Me. — (UP) — Neighbors nick-named Josiah Swett "Noah" when he and his son William built a schooner on the side of Mt. Ossipee, 35 miles from the ocean.

It happened in 1818 but natives still recall the "ark" which took two years to build and was hauled to the sea by 50 yoke of oxen.

Josiah had moved from the seacoast town of Wells in 1800 to a farm here. He talked often of the sea with his first son William and together they decided to construct "The Waterborough."

In 1820 the vessel was ready to launch. The neighbors were still skeptical but they volunteered their services and oxen. The launching party camped out two nights and arrived at Kennebunk Landing Feb. 20 where a crowd gathered to cheer the ceremony.

OLD CROSS-BOW MADE ACCURATE

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(UP)—William McClintock, archery instructor, has produced a medieval cross-bow streamlined to accuracy with a 20th-century trigger arrangement.

McClintock's cross-bow is as accurate as a small rifle and powerful enough to kill a deer with a regulation archery arrow. His cross-bow still has the same disadvantage as the type used by men-at-arms in the middle centuries, however. It cannot be shot as quickly or frequently as the long bow.

That, McClintock asserts, was the reason the use of the cross-bow died out because its users died too when facing the more rapid-shooting long bowmen.

FOOL-PROOF CAMOUFLAGE FOR AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, CLAIMED

COLUMBUS—(AP) An obstetrician whose hobby is colors and their effect on vision has come forward with a camouflage which he said was virtually perfect.

Dr. P. G. Wiltberger, a medical examiner for the civil aeronautics authority, said it was so effective that an airplane pilot taking off from a camouflaged aircraft carrier could not return to the base ship.

His development, which employs a combination of colors to make objects invisible at 500 feet or more, is being offered to the navy.

Dr. Wiltberger's announcement was prompted by the statement of Col. Fabian L. Pratt, commandant of the school of aviation medicine at Randolph Field, Tex., that a totally different type of camouflage would have to be developed to conceal war objectives from the vision of color-blind men. The Wiltberger camouflage is claimed to meet this requirement.

Army officials at Fort Sill, Okla., reported the discovery that a color-blind man found camouflaged objects more easily than soldiers with a normal vision.

Dr. Wiltberger, who served three army enlistments, reported to the Aero Medical association of the United States at Dayton Sept. 4, 1938, that "an army or navy observer can easily identify 'camouflaged' objects which are painted with the ordinary zigzag bright colors by merely placing over the eye piece of his telescope a delicate cherry red color filter."

The physician claims also to have developed a filter which, used on a projector will convert ordinary motion pictures into natural colors.

BRITONS MEET TEST IN AIR

Writer Says England So Far Wins in Sky Battles, Quotes Figures.

They have some reason for confidence because six weeks ago most persons who had witnessed the fall of France considered that this country had about one chance in ten to survive a German attack.

But today the same observers believe Britain now has better than a 50-50 chance to beat off the invaders.

This opinion is based chiefly on the fact that during the last 60 days the British army has largely repaired the damage done to the British expeditionary force in Flanders, and very nearly has replaced its lost equipment.

At the same time more than 1,000,000 home guards, fairly well armed, represent a considerable force.

The spirit of the Royal Air Force is superb and confidence daily justified by their deeds in battle is now reflected by the civilian population.

British morale was never better.

AGAINST PLAN

Sword Asks Commissioners to Reject U. S. Road Proposal.

County Engineer Howard Sword today recommended to county commissioners that they reject present plans of United States army engineers for laying two-mile stretch of road from Newville, around Pleasant Hill dam.

Sword told commissioners that after a conference with army engineers here yesterday he was not satisfied with their plans for a gravel road, which will replace the present concrete road east of Newville and which will be flooded when the Pleasant Hill lake rises to specified depths.

Sword recommended that the road be made of not less than seven inches of stabilized gravel covered with two inches of black top and also that the road be extended to the township line.

The road as planned by army engineers would cost about $36,000 and would be paid by federal funds. It will serve the people who live on the south side of the Newville-Perrysville road. Because of its scenic attraction it will be highly traveled by sightseers and Sword believes it should be a hard surface highway, he said.

SHOWERS FADE

Rain Fails But Weatherman Says It'll Be Cooler.

Those long-predicted showers which have failed to materialize seemed farther away than ever today when the weatherman's forecast is for "cooler tonight and fair Thursday."

A stiff breeze today kept the mercury down to 87 this noon as compared to 90 yesterday at noon. A drop to 65 during the night brought the average to 77.5, six degrees warmer than normal for this date.

While showers were forecast for the southern section of the state tonight, there seemed little hope for much-needed rain in this vicinity.

SITE REJECTED

Troy-Piqua Area Turned Down For Munitions Plant.

WASHINGTON—(CE)—A proposed site for a new ammunition loading plant in the Troy-Piqua area of Ohio was reported today to have been rejected by the national defense commission.

Authoritative quarters said that the site had been accepted tentatively by the war department but that the defense commission had decided to turn it down, presumably because it had another strategic area in mind.

The defense commission, after checking the report on the proposed Troy-Piqua site for eight hours, said it "could not even find the project listed." Although the army never announced officially that the site had been chosen, the report on its action came from a well-informed source.

In the total were 294 boys and young men who participated in the "Y" day camp program, which included leathercraft, fiber weaving, wood working, amateur photography, sail boat races at North Lake park, outings at the camp, horse shoe pitching contests, nature hikes, ping pong, checkers, chess, and swimming.

During the month, 106 softball games were played by the various teams in the Y. M. C. A. softball leagues, a glider contest was promoted by the "Y" model airplane club and was open to all boys in the city.

A total of 32 boys attended the "Y" camp at Camp Nelson Dodd, some for the two weeks period and some for the one week period.

GET WARNING ON HOUSE NUMBERS

Crafton Tells Them City Will Correct Numbers and Add Charge on Taxes.

Mansfield property owners who refrain from placing correct house numbers up on their property will find themselves in the same position as those who do not cut weeds on vacant lots—the work will be done by the city and charged to the property on tax duplicates.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said there were a few home owners in the city who had not complied with the regulation requiring proper numbering of houses after streets and lots had been renumbered early this year.

Aug. 1 was the dead line for changing from old to new numbers, and in cases where property owners have failed to put up the new numbers themselves, the city will do it, Crafton said, and charge the cost of the work to the property tax duplicate. This will add considerably to the cost of the numbers, he said, for the costs of the recording the charge will be added.

New numbers, according to the regulation, must be four inches high and plainly visible from the street. Business firms, insurance companies and the telephone company are now changing their records to conform with the new numbers, Crafton said.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The production of plays is a good source of amusement for many people, old and young. These new books about plays will be welcomed by our Children's Theater group and by many other children with similar interests. The first is a new collection of plays with some very clear and direct helps for those who wish to produce them. The other is a story which follows many of the principles in the first.

THE BOOK OF ORIGINAL PLAYS, by Horace Gardiner—Beginning with a general discussion of techniques in the back-stage management of plays, this book includes several new plays for all ages of children from four years of age through high school.

FAMILY FOOTLIGHTS, by Kitty Barne—Four children went to visit their Aunt Myra, whom they had never seen, for a long mid-winter holiday. Aunt Myra was soon fondly named Yeranti at the housekeeper's suggestion and before long they were all engrossed in the production of a play by a local author to raise funds with which to buy a new violin for Axel, a young musician genius. The story is full of jolly humor and the bewilderment and activity which accompanies a drama crew.

WEATHER TURNS ON CORN AFTER HELPING WHEAT

Same Conditions Which Gave Wheat Boost Now Threaten Failure to Other Crop.

The same weather conditions that helped to give Richland county big wheat and oats yields this season now threaten heavy damage to the corn crop.

Corn fields in some sections of the county probably will produce only a small crop or none at all, farmers predict, and even if there's a good rain now it will be too late to help some of the fields.

Because of excessive rainfall early in the spring and during the planting season, corn was planted late on badly drained land and now it is showing the effects of drought.

In some fields the stalks are tasseling when they are not more than three or four feet tall, indicating the ears will be underdeveloped and the fodder short.

Good growing weather during the early summer, between the wet and dry spells, gave some of the fields a good start, however, and in scattered sections of the county corn is expected to be about average.

Farmers believe a heavy shower now would boost prospects for corn planted late, but they predict the crop generally throughout the county will be considerably below the 1939 production.

Three Italian Towns Attacked by British

Berlin Has 47-Minute Scare as Britain Strikes Back In Retaliation for Raids on Island Kingdom.

The air ministry announced that the RAF's spectacular sortie into Italy caused "heavy damage" to aircraft factories at Milan and Turin.

At least 30 British planes were believed to have engaged in the attack—the first big smash at Italian cities since the war began—in a flight that carried them more than 1,200 miles round trip from England.

The air ministry said all returned safely, except one which made a forced landing a few miles from the English coast. Its crew was rescued.

Berlin reported that British raiders penetrated to the region of Potsdam, 20 miles west of Berlin, but were turned back by anti-aircraft fire before they could reach the capital.

Air-raid warnings sent Berlin residents bounding from bed to the safety of air-raid shelters, however, and residents of the capital's suburbs said they heard the sound of distant gun-fire.

The RAF raids in Italy left their sting at Milan, Turin, Alessandra and Tortona, all industrial centers in northern Italy. Augusta, in Sicily, also was bombed.

German bombers returned to the attack on England during the night and morning, blasting at the great industrial Midlands for several hours in the biggest assault there of the war.

On edge for an imminently expected land invasion, Britons experienced a mild alarm over reports that 11 German parachutists landed in the Midlands during the night and that seven of them were captured.

Aviation experts discounted the report, saying the parachutes found were not the type used by Nazi 'chutist troops in Holland, Belgium and France. They expressed belief that the 'chutes belonged to German aviators shot down by RAF fighters.

In yesterday's air war the British listed 78 raiders shot down and 13 British planes lost, making the totals for last Thursday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday: 265 German planes to 68 British.

The Germans reported 132 British planes downed to 28 German, with totals for the four days 363 British planes to 83 German.

Intense heat which may not let up until late August or early September still militated against any Italian attack from Libya into Egypt but Italians said their invading columns had pierced to within 50 miles of Berbera, key to British Somaliland.

Admiral Thomas Charles Hart, commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, arrived by submarine today at Shanghai to take a hand in the troubled affairs of the international settlement from which British troops are to be withdrawn.

Although Admiral Hart was not expected to attend a scheduled meeting of the foreign defense council tomorrow, his presence was viewed as strengthening the hand of American officials, who, it was understood, would oppose Japanese demands for control of the British sector.

In Rome, the Italian press hinted that the Greek island of Corfu and the entire Adriatic seacoast might be claimed by Italy as a sequel to the playing of an Albanian "patriot," allegedly by two Greeks.

This development followed accusations by Italian spokesmen that Greece had territorial designs on Albania, which Italy annexed in 1939.

Nazis Say British Planes Halted 12 Miles From Berlin

(By United Press)

BERLIN—German anti-aircraft guns turned back a British airplane fleet a little more than 10 miles west of Berlin early today, well informed Nazi sources said today in explaining a 47-minute air raid alarm.

The same informants said during the morning that no reports had been received of a continuation of German airplane attacks on the British Isles, but at 1 p. m. (6 a. m. EST) informants said that they "understood" that raids had been resumed this morning "in very favorable weather."

(London reported that there had been a sudden and as yet unexplained lull in German daytime raiding.)

Explaining the air raid alarm which startled Berliners from their sleep early today, informants said that British planes, flying at a considerable height, approached the Berlin area.

The planes were forced back "a dozen or so" miles west of the city without dropping their bombs, the informants said, so there was no anti-aircraft fire in the city.

Such alarms always are given when planes reach a certain designated "danger zone" around the capital, it was said.

The official news agency said that 71 British planes were shot down in air battles over the English channel and the British Isles, that 42 were destroyed by anti-aircraft guns over German territory or on the ground in German bombing attacks, and that 15 British bomber planes were destroyed by German planes and one was destroyed by anti-aircraft gun-fire during an attack on Aalborg, Denmark.

German planes yesterday and last night had "effectively" bombed a large number of "sea objectives" as well as arms factories and a "very large" number of airdromes in England, it was said.

Senate In Midst of 'Hot' Conscription Debate

This picture was snapped as the United States senate debated the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill which was attacked bitterly by oppositionists led by Senators Burton K. Wheeler of Montana and George W. Norris of Nebraska. Evidently, however, interest was lagging when the photo was taken, for many seats are vacant and several of the senators are wandering about the floor. Senator Key Pittman of Nevada is presiding from the rostrum, extreme right. Senator Matthew Neely of West Virginia leans over to talk to Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, lower left, and one unidentified solon exhibits a great deal of interest—in the newspaper he is reading, with his back to the rostrum.

CUDAHY SILENT

Ambassador to Belgium Waits Capital Conferences.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Still silent on the recent British interview which brought him an official state department rebuke, John Cudahy, U. S. ambassador to Belgium, was en route to Washington today for conferences with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Arriving by Clipper plane yesterday, Cudahy spent the night in New York with his family.

In the interview, Cudahy declared German soldiers in Belgium conducted themselves better than American soldiers might under similar circumstances and was quoted as stating the food situation in Belgium was serious.

ARK RECALLED

Schooner Built on Side of Mountain Far From Sea.

WATERBORO, Me — (U.P.) — Neighbors nick-named Josiah Swett "Noah" when he and his son William built a schooner on the side of Mt. Ossipee, 35 miles from the ocean.

It happened in 1818 but natives still recall the "ark" which took two years to build and was hauled to the sea by 50 yoke of oxen.

Josiah had moved from the seacoast town of Wells in 1800 to a farm here. He talked often of the sea with his first son William and together they decided to construct "The Waterborough."

In 1820 the vessel was ready to launch. The neighbors were still skeptical but they volunteered their services and oxen. The launching party camped out two nights and arrived at Kennebunk Landing Feb. 20 where a crowd gathered to cheer the ceremony.

OLD CROSS-BOW MADE ACCURATE

ST. PAUL, Minn. —(U.P.)— William McClintock archery instructor, has produced a medieval cross-bow streamlined to accuracy with a 20th-century trigger arrangement.

McClintock's cross-bow is as accurate as a small rifle and powerful enough to kill a deer with a regulation archery arrow. His cross-bow still has the same disadvantage as the type used by men-at-arms in the middle centuries, however. It cannot be shot as quickly or frequently as the long bow.

That McClintock asserts, was the reason the use of the cross-bow died out because its users died too when facing the more rapid-shooting long bowmen.

Duke, Duchess At Bermuda

The Duke of Windsor, who gave up the British throne for "the woman I love," the former Wallis Warfield, of Baltimore, Md., is shown with his Duchess aboard the Excalibur as they crossed the Atlantic from Portugal to Bermuda. They were en route to the Duke's Nassau post as governor of the Bahamas.

FOOL-PROOF CAMOUFLAGE FOR AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, CLAIMED

COLUMBUS—(AP)—An obstetrician whose hobby is colors and their effect on vision has come forward with a camouflage which he said was virtually perfect.

Dr. P. G. Wiltberger, a medical examiner for the civil aeronautics authority, said it was so effective that an airplane pilot taking off from a camouflaged aircraft carrier could not return to the base ship.

His development, which employs a combination of colors to make objects invisible at 500 feet or more, is being offered to the navy.

Dr. Wiltberger's announcement was prompted by the statement of Col. Fabian L. Pratt, commandant of the school of aviation medicine at Randolph Field, Tex., that a totally different type of camouflage would have to be developed to conceal war objectives from the vision of color-blind men. The Wiltberger camouflage is claimed to meet this requirement.

Army officials at Fort Sill, Okla., reported the discovery that a color-blind man found camouflaged objects more easily than soldiers with a normal vision.

Dr. Wiltberger, who served three army enlistments, reported to the Aero Medical association of the United States at Dayton Sept. 4, 1938 that "an army or navy observer can easily identify 'camouflaged' objects which are painted with the ordinary zigzag bright colors by merely placing over the eye piece of his telescope a delicate cherry red color filter."

The physician claims also to have developed a filter which, used on a projector, will convert ordinary motion pictures into natural colors.

BRITONS MEET TEST IN AIR

Writer Says England So Far Wins in Sky Battles, Quotes Figures.

They have some reason for confidence because six weeks ago most persons who had witnessed the fall of France considered that this country had about one chance in ten to survive a German attack.

But today the same observers believe Britain now has better than a 50-50 chance to beat off the invaders.

This opinion is based chiefly on the fact that during the last 60 days the British army has largely repaired the damage done to the British expeditionary force in Flanders, and very nearly has replaced its lost equipment.

At the same time more than 1,000,000 home guards, fairly well armed, represent a considerable force.

The spirit of the Royal Air Force is superb and confidence daily justified by their deeds in battle is now reflected by the civilian population.

British morale was never better.

AGAINST PLAN

Sword Asks Commissioners to Reject U. S. Road Proposal.

County Engineer Howard Sword today recommended to county commissioners that they reject present plans of United States army engineers for laying two-mile stretch of road from Newville, around Pleasant Hill dam.

Sword told commissioners that after a conference with army engineers here yesterday he was not satisfied with their plans for a gravel road, which will replace the present concrete road east of Newville and which will be flooded when the Pleasant Hill lake rises to specified depths.

Sword recommended that the road be made of not less than seven inches of stabilized gravel covered with two inches of black top and also that the road be extended to the township line.

The road as planned by army engineers would cost about $36,000 and would be paid by federal funds. It will serve the people who live on the south side of the Newville-Perrysville road. Because of its scenic attraction it will be highly traveled by sightseers and Sword believes it should be a hard surface highway, he said.

SHOWERS FADE

Rain Fails But Weatherman Says It'll Be Cooler.

Those long-predicted showers which have failed to materialize seemed farther away than ever today when the weatherman's forecast is for "cooler tonight and fair Thursday."

A stiff breeze today kept the mercury down to 87 this noon as compared to 90 yesterday at noon. A drop to 65 during the night brought the average to 77.5, six degrees warmer than normal for this date.

While showers were forecast for the southern section of the state tonight, there seemed little hope for much-needed rain in this vicinity.

SITE REJECTED

Troy-Piqua Area Turned Down For Munitions Plant.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A proposed site for a new ammunition loading plant in the Troy-Piqua area of Ohio was reported today to have been rejected by the national defense commission.

Authoritative quarters said that the site had been accepted tentatively by the war department but that the defense commission had decided to turn it down, presumably because it had another strategic area in mind.

The defense commission, after checking the report on the proposed Troy-Piqua site for eight hours, said it "could not even find the project listed." Although the army never announced officially that the site had been chosen, the report on its action came from a well-informed source.

Attendance Reaches 12,329 In July, Report From Secretary Shows.

Activity attendance at the Y. M. C. A. for the month of July proved to be the largest in 10 years, according to a report issued today by R. B. Chapman, executive secretary.

Attendance for activities reached 12,329 for the month. This includes the attendance for both "Y" members and non-members.

In the total were 294 boys and young men who participated in the "Y" day camp program, which included leathercraft, fiber weaving, wood working, amateur photography, sail boat races at North Lake park, outings at the camp, horse shoe pitching contests, nature hikes, ping pong, checkers, chess, and swimming.

During the month, 106 softball games were played by the various teams in the Y. M. C. A. softball leagues, a glider contest was promoted by the "Y" model airplane club and was open to all boys in the city.

Regular sessions of the "Y" boxing class were held each week under the supervision of William Goetz. The noon volleyball group and the Bar Bell class also continued their activities during the month.

Various groups also held meetings at the "Y" during July: the Soap Box Derby boys, Buckeye Hobby club, Projectionist club, Amateur Astronomers club, W. P. A. Recreational leaders, Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors, Sea Scouts and Phalanx fraternity.

A total of 32 boys attended the "Y" camp at Camp Nelson Dodd, some for the two weeks period and some for the one week period.

GET WARNING ON HOUSE NUMBERS

Crafton Tells Them City Will Correct Numbers and Add Charge on Taxes.

Mansfield property owners who refrain from placing correct house numbers up on their property will find themselves in the same position as those who do not cut weeds on vacant lots—the work will be done by the city and charged to the property on tax duplicates.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said there were a few home owners in the city who had not complied with the regulation requiring proper numbering of houses after streets and lots had been renumbered early this year.

Aug. 1 was the dead line for changing from old to new numbers, and in cases where property owners have failed to put up the new numbers themselves, the city will do it, Crafton said, and charge the cost of the work to the property tax duplicate. This will add considerably to the cost of the numbers, he said, for the costs of the recording the charge will be added.

New numbers, according to the regulation, must be four inches high and plainly visible from the street. Business firms, insurance companies and the telephone company are now changing their records to conform with the new numbers, Crafton said.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The production of plays is a good source of amusement for many people, old and young. These new books about plays will be welcomed by our Children's Theater group and by many other children with similar interests. The first is a new collection of plays with some very clear and direct helps for those who wish to produce them. The other is a story which follows many of the principles in the first.

THE BOOK OF ORIGINAL PLAYS, by Horace Gardner—Beginning with a general discussion of techniques in the back-stage management of plays, this book includes several new plays for all ages of children from four years of age through high school.

FAMILY FOOTLIGHTS, by Kitty Barne—Four children went to visit their Aunt Myra, whom they had never seen, for a long mid-winter holiday. Aunt Myra was soon fondly named Yeranti at the housekeeper's suggestion and before long they were all engrossed in the production of a play by a local author to raise funds with which to buy a new violin for Axel, a young musician genius. The story is full of jolly humor and the bewilderment and activity which accompanies a drama crew.

WEATHER TURNS ON CORN AFTER HELPING WHEAT

Same Conditions Which Gave Wheat Boost Now Threaten Failure to Other Crop.

The same weather conditions that helped to give Richland county big wheat and oats yields this season now threaten heavy damage to the corn crop.

Corn fields in some sections of the county probably will produce only a small crop or none at all, farmers predict, and even if there's a good rain now it will be too late to help some of the fields.

Because of excessive rainfall early in the spring and during the planting season, corn was planted late on badly drained land and now it is showing the effects of drought.

In some fields the stalks are tasseling when they are not more than three or four feet tall, indicating the ears will be underdeveloped and the fodder short.

Good growing weather during the early summer, between the wet and dry spells, gave some of the fields a good start, however, and in scattered sections of the county corn is expected to be about average.

Farmers believe a heavy shower now would boost prospects for corn planted late, but they predict the crop generally throughout the county will be considerably below the 1939 production.

Former 'Miss America' Answers Call to Colors.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The army called a former "Miss America" to the colors today in its drive to enlist an additional 50,000 men as soon as possible.

According to the best information at hand it is still too early to bet on the election outcome.

It appears that, in the proposed reapportionment of the world, Spain has decided to take back Florida—and she'll probably be surprised at the changes that have been made.

Flight To Colonies Foreseen

HIDDEN AWAY in the pages of a book written by Ralph Waldo Emerson, after a visit to England almost a hundred years ago, is a paragraph that seems strangely prophetic, in the light of recent happenings.

In a chapter on "character" in his volume on English Traits, Emerson said: "Half their strength they put not forth. They are capable of a sublime resolution, and if hereafter the war of races, often predicted, and making itself a war of opinions also (a question of despotism and liberty coming from Eastern Europe), should menace the English civilization, these sea-kings may take once again to their floating castles, and find a new home and a second millennium of power in their colonies. The stability of England is the security of the modern world. If the English race were as mutable as the French, what reliance? But the Englishman stands for liberty. . . . "

From which it would appear that the despotism of Eastern Europe was recognized as a threat to Western Europe's more advanced civilization even a century ago, from which it would seem that more serious attention might well have been paid to the expressed views of Robert Lansing, deposed secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet.

In his book, "The Peace Negotiations," published in 1921, Mr. Lansing quoted a memorandum written May 8, 1919, in which he expressed his ideas of the Versailles treaty, from which the following is an excerpt: "The impression made by it is one of disappointment, of regret and of depression. The terms of peace appear immeasurably harsh and humiliating, while many of them seem to me impossible of performance. . . . The League (of Nations) might as well attempt to prevent the growth of plant life in a tropical jungle. Wars will come sooner or later."

And war HAS come—as forecast by Lansing and foreseen by Emerson, but whether the sea-kings of England will be compelled to "take once again to their floating castles and find a new home in their colonies" is yet to be determined, as Nazi raiders continue their vicious air attacks on the British Isles.

Ineffective Drivers' License Law

A STATE-WIDE survey of traffic conditions, with recommendation for suitable amendments to present laws, might be effective in at least partially correcting such a weakness as now exists in Ohio's drivers' license law.

As it now stands this law is totally ineffective in accomplishing what must be regarded as its primary purpose—barring unfit drivers from the highways.

In Cleveland, a few days ago, a man taken into traffic court was found to have a record of 16 traffic arrests in 43 months, but with a driver's license which gave no indication of this in the space provided for notation of convictions for traffic offenses.

The Cleveland Press comments editorially: "It has been apparent since the licensing law started that a blind and deaf drunkard need only deny he was a blind and deaf drunkard, pay his 40 cents, and get a license to make the rest of us jump for our lives. . . . We grant that license clerks cannot tell perjury by instinct. We charge that, in addition, they apparently would not recognize perjury if they met it on the street."

Any serious approach to the problem of making Ohio's highways and city streets safer must necessarily include recognition that incompetent, reckless and drunken drivers are directly responsible for a high percentage of the so-called "accidents" which involve fatalities or serious injuries.

Imperial Japan Spreading Out

RAPID action is expected now in the Orient, as the Japanese imperialists proceed with their long-cherished plans to take over the rich holdings of the white race. With the most profitable areas in China in their hands, they are in process of swallowing French Indo-China. They frankly reveal their intention of turning next to the Dutch East Indies, the richest realm in the Indian ocean and one of the world's greatest colonial prizes.

Thus, the Tokyo planners say, "Japan's existence" will be assured. Japan will have an empire more suited to her boundless ambitions and economic needs, with raw materials and commercial opportunities for her enrichment, and colonies to absorb her teeming surplus of population.

Americans, while hardly disposed to go to war in order to prevent such expansion, naturally wonder how much farther it will go. Particularly are people wondering increasingly whether, with the East Indies in the bag, Japan will let the Philippines alone. It is well known that she covets those islands.

Uncle Sam has [illegible] of Philippine independence, at the end of the period themselves becoming effective in about six years. But the islanders lately, as they see the Japanese menace [illegible] one of their enthusiasm for that plan.

FLOOD TIME IS HERE AGAIN

Objections to Straw Vote Polls

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

ORGANIZZED straw polls on a national scale and involving issues presently to be decided by official elections are beginning to be very bitterly criticized in certain circles in Washington, as the political hub of the country.

Of course, the activities of Dr. George Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion are the target that the adverse critics are shooting at.

Equally, of course, virtually all the criticism comes, just now, from Democratic sources, for the obvious reason that the Gallup results are not a bit favorable to the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket in the pending presidential campaign. They certainly do imply, if they're to be taken seriously, that even though F. D. R. and his running mate win in November, it will be by a much smaller majority than the New Deal leader scored four or eight years ago.

It also is quite understandable why Republicans are finding no fault with straw polling under existing circumstances.

Were Doc Gallup's returns pro-Rooseveltian and anti-Willkieite, unquestionably the Democrats would be perfectly contented, with Republicans howling that such pre-election polls ought to be prohibited or at least strictly regulated.

Rather Contradictory.

The complainants are rather contradictory with their arguments.

On the one hand they poohpooh the experimental polls as absolutely meaningless and cite the case of a periodical which engineered one before Doc Gallup's day, went wholly wrong in its conclusions and made itself so ridiculous that it never recovered from it.

On the opposite hand they assert that the polls do influence the voters, influence them improperly and that they shouldn't be permitted, unless carefully supervised, anyway.

They don't outright charge that the poll managers manipulate their figures unfairly, but they contend that they can, if they choose to. Somehow, say the kickers, this needs to be guarded against.

Provided the Democrats win in November, maybe they'll pass a law on the subject.

The Republicans won't if they win, though. They'll reckon that straw polling this time was a help to them and they'll want it kept up—until some occasion when it flops over the other way—and they get the worst of it.

Unemployment Is Your Problem —Not Just Uncle Sam's.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE been hearing about a movement in New York City which sounds like carload lots of "hoss sense." The group who are behind it call their program "JOBS, INCORPORATED." Which, generally, would mean that they were founding a Third Party . . . or setting up to censor the Supreme Court . . . preparing to purge everything and everyone in sight . . . including the number of bath towels used per capita per diem in each household. But, praises be, they aren't!

To our complete and amazed delight, these "JOBS, Inc's" are setting out to do one thing and one thing only—namely, get jobs for people who need 'em. And make you and me individually responsible for the same. Which is the nearest thing to a 100 per cent American gesture that these weary eyes have seen in many a blue moon.

Here's the gist of the plan, and if you don't give it a hand, I'm off you for life. Said "JOBS, Inc's" have no fight with federal aid. 'S matter of fact, they know that, during these last few years, a certain amount of such aid has been inevitable.

"All right, Uncle Sam," says they, "go to it. Do your stuff!"

"BUT SAME TIME THEY HAVE THE QUAINT BUT ENTIRELY ADMIRABLE BELIEF THAT YOU AND I AND ALL THE OTHER 130,000,000 CITIZENS ARE EQUALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE PLIGHT OF OUR LOCAL UNEMPLOYED AND SHOULD DO OUR SHARE BEFORE YELPING TO PAPPY FOR HELP.

Which may sound unique to you, youngster, but won't to any citizen over twenty-five years of age. For time was, and recently, when each community was supposed to support its own bread line and flip off its own fleas. Or else.

Naturally these [illegible] don't endure forever on [illegible] sympathy. For one thing [illegible] gave birth to a Moronic Age . . . which has made a lot of folk ineligible for anything but a New Long Nap. Also we're spending a Post Bowl which has provided a lot of Joining Heels with a certain sort ability for going places. We've certainly passed back to Santa Claus. But allowed Father Steinbeck to cash in on those Grapes" than the wiseacres ever knew existed.

How to get going on the [illegible] morale there was a time in these United States [illegible] gledly cut their own throats [illegible] than become radical [illegible] Strange as it may seem, [illegible] per cent of the [illegible] relief rolls on our ability to [illegible] our own lives.

But that was before [illegible] Santa Claus with a false [illegible] to every pair of pants. Mind you, I'm not kicking at this wholesale relief. I've been so darn poor most of my own life that any kind of relief, wholesale or retail, would have been not only welcomed but grabbed.

However, even a practically continuous diet of dog biscuits and cold water hasn't eliminated my original American instincts. Wherefore I'm loudly applauding the the plans of these smart and patriotic New Yorkers who are backing "JOBS, Inc" and promoting a plan of local unemployment responsibility.

Let Uncle Sam do it, by all means, when the need goes beyond state management, as it often does. But first let's do our best, as individual members of separate commonwealths, to solve the problem.

Kids want jobs. Sure they do. They wanted them, also, back in 1890 and 1910. How'd we solve them, then, before we put Uncle Sam on the Sucker List? We had them build our hen houses . . . patch our roofs . . . white-wash our picket fences . . . hem our dish towels and darn our socks . . . mind the baby . . . weed the vegetable patch. Seems simple. Was simple. But it saved the Younger Generation's self-respect . . . and lifted a plaster from the Federal Treasury.

Well, what's wrong with reviving the same old notions? Nothing says I. Let the government [illegible] and when it must. BUT FOR PETE'S SAKE, GIVE YOUNG AMERICA AND OUR SEPARATE STATES . . A CHANCE TO WIN BACK THEIR SELF-RESPECT.

Flynn Speeds Campaign Set-up: Anti-Reds Seek Alliance Control

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — When those Democratic leaders told Roosevelt at the White House conference, "Keep Hopkins out of the campaign," apparently they meant it.

One of those at the meeting was Ed Flynn, who succeeds to the national chairmanship next Saturday. And it was Ed Flynn who was responsible for that Hyde Park announcement denying that Hopkins would sit in on a political council-of-war with the president and Henry Wallace.

Flynn read in the Tuesday morning papers that Hopkins was to take part in the pow-wow. He had no information as to the source of the news report, but he strongly suspected Harry, himself.

However, Flynn wasted no time in arguing about the matter. He called up Hyde Park and bluntly insisted that "Hopkins is out." And he was. A half hour later, White House Secretary Bill Hasset summoned newsmen and told them Hopkins would not be present at the conference between Roosevelt and Wallace.

Note—The secretary of commerce spent the day whiling his time away playing bridge in a nearby Poughkeepsie hotel.

Decentralized Set-Up.

WORKING at high speed behind the scenes for his taking over of the national chairmanship, Flynn has completely reorganized the Democratic campaign machinery.

The crux of the new set-up is decentralization.

Instead of the central headquarters occupying four hotel floors in Manhattan, which Farley bossed, Flynn will establish a number of regional offices to be under the direction of local leaders.

Already decided on are the following:

Eastern headquarters, located in New York, under Flynn himself; mid-western offices, in Chicago, under Paul McNutt; southern, in Birmingham, under Senator John Bankhead; Rocky Mountain, in Denver, under Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming; southwestern, in a city yet to be selected, under Sam Rayburn, house floor leader and close friend of Jack Garner; Pacific coast, city and chief yet to be chosen. Heading a separate campaign group will be Mayor LaGuardia of New York, who will carry the Roosevelt-Wallace campaign among liberal and independent elements. The LaGuardia organization will be known as the Roosevelt Progressive campaign committee.

Flynn also plans a number of changes in national committee personnel.

Note—When Flynn agreed to become Democratic chairman he did so on one condition only, that he have a free hand to clean up the national committee and run the campaign without interference from White House intimates like Hopkins.

If Willkie Wins.

A GROUP of ardent young New Dealers and their wives held a weighty conference under a lamp post. It was a Georgetown lamp post at the corner of Thirtieth and N streets, and they all lived near that corner, but they all wondered how long they would live there.

That was the subject that weighed upon their minds, but they didn't express it in the usual political talk. Their talk was confined to leases.

James H. Rowe, administrative assistant to the president, whose house is right on the corner, looked at Ralph T. Seward, who lives in the famous "narrowest house" a few doors below. And Mrs. Seward looked at Mrs. Rowe.

Abe Fortas, once of SEC, now Bituminous Coal division counsel, studied the face of Ed Phelps, associate solicitor of the labor department. Fortas was thinking of his house on the opposite corner.

When thought found words, they were something like this:

"Are you planning to renew your lease?" . . . "Dunno, are you?" . . . "Mine's up in October" . . . "So's mine." . . . "Going to sign up for another year?"

No mention was made of the name "Willkie"—not a word. But presently someone said, "I think I'll see what kind of cancellation clause I can get, in case—"

The sentence was never finished. It wasn't necessary.

Let There Be Less Light.

ONE of the important anti-trust cases upon which the justice department is working quietly is the attempt of big utility companies to suppress the use of electric light bulbs using less current, and thus reducing the housewife's electric light bills.

What the justice department has unearthed is the fact that the General Electric company was exhibiting at the New York World's Fair a new fluorescent bulb which generates the same amount of light as a standard bulb on less than one-third the amount of power.

However, some of the utility companies learned of this and asked General Electric to withdraw the exhibit. Obviously if the public began using this type of bulb, it would mean the lowering of electric light consumption and loss of revenue to the utilities. General Electric complied with the request.

The utility companies also have issued instructions not to permit any promotion or advertisement of this new type of light bulb, and one magazine advertisement was re-written in order to comply with this policy.

Justice department investigators contend this is in violation of the anti-trust laws, and now have the matter before a grand jury.

Anti-Red Fight.

THE bitter battle against the Communist-controlled Workers Alliance opens on a new front next Monday.

Two hundred delegates from thirty states will meet in Chicago to organize a new national WPA workers union to be free of Red domination. Leaders of the convention are David Lasser, former head of the Workers Alliance, who quit because of Communist penetration, and six national board officers who walked out with him.

Lasser decided to launch a new union after a tour of Alliance branches in eighteen states. Everywhere he found strong sentiment for an organization free of Red influence. Among the names under consideration for the new union is American Security Alliance.

Note—The Communist rulers of the Workers Alliance have called a convention of that organization in Chicago for Aug. 28.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Of all the big time, low tariff dance halls in the U. S., the most celebrated is the Savoy Ballroom, black jewel of Harlem's famed swivel-hipped night life.

Out of it have come such classics of jitterbug dancing as the "Lindy Hop" and the "Harlem-conga." From it have come such famed negro musicians as Cab Calloway, Ella Fitzgerald, Erskin Hawkins, the Four Ink Spots, and the late Chick Webb. To it have been dedicated such compositions as "Stomping at the Savoy," Gene Krupa's "Bolero at the Savoy," and now "Waltz Night at the Savoy"—although not one tune in a thousand played at the Savoy is a waltz.

Fifteen years ago the Savoy was built on the site of the old Lenox avenue car barns by Moe Gale, a manager and booker of theatrical and musical talent in New York. When the first ticket was sold, it was handed to a ticket-taker by the name of Big George, a broad-shouldered, chocolate colored negro who has held the job ever since. Most of the Savoy's staff of 55 people are "charter members." The Savoy doesn't choose or release its help lightly. Big George is a character now. He owns Big George's Tavern at Corona, L. I.

* * *

IN ITS fifteen years of pre- and post-repeal activities, practically every well-known white and colored band in America has played there, including Paul Whiteman, Benny Goodman, Fred Waring and Rudy Vallee. In attendance always is one more band, and sometimes two. Tradition at the Savoy is that the music never stops. You pay your 55c and on six nights of the week you go in at 8 o'clock and dance until 3. That's all it ever costs, unless you order wine or beer or soft drinks. Hard liquor isn't permitted. On the seventh night, which is Saturday, you come an hour earlier and dance until four.

The Savoy, a stopping point on all tourists routes of Harlem, now has namesakes in Miami, Chicago, Baltimore, Houston, Richmond, and Newark. It takes its name from London's famed Savoy hotel.

* * *

MONDAY, Thursday, and Saturday nights are its big nights—Monday because that is Ladies' Nite; Thursday because traditionally it's the maid's night out, and Saturday because everybody in Harlem, and also in Manhattan, goes out on Saturday night.

On good nights, according to Charles Buchanan, the manager, the hall easily accommodates 3,000 persons. Its biggest night was the night Joe Louis knocked out Primo Carnera. Joe had promised a personal appearance and when at 5 a. m. he finally arrived, 35,000 jubilant negroes were milling in Lenox avenue, waiting for a glimpse of their idol. That was a night the cops in Harlem still remember.

Star of the Savoy's staff and apple of Harlem's eye is Cissy Bowe, the cigarette girl, who has been at the Savoy for 12 years. This year she was named "Miss Harlem" and it was she who greeted "Rochester," Jack Benny's prime stooge, when he came east for a vacation in New York. Rochester's arrival is another event that Harlem, and Cissy and the Savoy, will long remember.

A Farmer's Diary

A Welcome Rain

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS very hot and close this afternoon. It felt like rain. I watched dark, massive thunderheads rise above the trees on the hill and heard it thunder, just audibly at first, then deeper, with heavy rumbling that shook the house and the earth beneath it. Hot forks of lightning split the blackened cloud. Then all along the horizon, the heavy cloud bank began to rise and streaks of rain poured down.

It was a welcome sight. I eagerly watched and waited under the shelter of the barn shed, for it to sweep up our valley. Three weeks the soil had been parched. Cracks an inch wide were evident about heavy clay and bottom lands. Every afternoon the blades of corn rolled up together to conserve their moisture. Pumpkin vines withered piteously. Grass of the lawn was seared and pastures had brown and faded portions. Creek beds were almost dry, and native springs ran low. Dust settled inland from the gravel road along the borders of cultivated fields. Now all parched life and every creeping grass root waited for the rain with eagerness like my own.

The spreading cloud rode higher. Western hills grew gray and faded out of sight. Three neighbors' houses were screened by a veil of rain, until only a misty outline showed. Whited lines of moisture raced across the level valley. Great heavy drops fell upon the metal roof and rang like pounding hammers. White chickens, both young and old, in great surprise, ran from the lawn and poorer portions of the field to eat the barn.

A few seconds more, and with a whirl of wind, the torrent broke. I stood in the barn door and enjoyed it. When it slackened a little I took off my shoes and waded in the moist grass of the barn bridge. I heard, as in the spring, the moisture soak into the thirsty soil, and smelled the odor of the parched earth, giving up its heat. Corn and clover stood up proudly, with raindrops dripping from the leaves.

Along steep hillsides, and from the narrow valley of my neighbor's woods, gray irregular pillars of fog rose slowly above the treetops. The evening sun shone full upon this fog cloud and transformed it into a thin, shimmering, translucent column of eddying gold.

Little puddles in the hollows of the road and droplets on the meadow grass reflected back an amber glow. By late evening the long bank of cloud was scarcely visible along the eastern valley rim.

The air was washed. I felt my spirits rise as I breathed deep of the new conditioned atmosphere.

Justice Department Plans Probe of Food 'Gouges'

PRICE-FIXING PLOTS HIT BY TRUST BUSTER

Federal Grand Jury Action Promised on Evidence To Be Uncovered.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The justice department plans soon to undertake a nation-wide investigation of purported "consumer gouges" that cost the public millions of dollars annually on its primary necessity—food.

Thurman Arnold, chief of the anti-trust division said today he was forwarding to his staff of 197 men an outline of 87 suggested subjects for investigation in the food industry.

The matters to be investigated involve alleged efforts to inflate food prices and sometimes to deflate producers' income through conspiracy of large processing and marketing interests; coercion of small operators, "fake auctions" by which many food prices are determined, and some labor union practices. A policy of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was questioned in one section of the outline.

"Leads" to be run down by Justice department anti-trust agents in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and Washington were assembled by division economic consultants. Any evidence turned up in the investigation is to be presented to federal grand juries immediately.

The anti-trust division is now presenting evidence to grand juries on "production bottlenecks" in vital war industries. Some of these same grand juries may hear the food cases later.

COMPLETE WORK ON SETTING UP 41 NEW BUDGETS

County Officials to Submit Reports to Subdivisions In Near Future.

Work on the 1941 budgets for Richland county's 41 school districts and subdivisions is nearing completion, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today, and it is expected that the revised drafts will be returned to the districts by Sept. 1.

Since late in July, the auditor and other members of the county budget commission have been going over the requests submitted by the subdivisions, comparing the amounts requested with the funds available for next year.

Where the requests exceed the available funds, local government officials will be advised to reduce their needs accordingly.

Wolfe said it will be impossible to set tax rates for next year until after the November election, since a number of cities, villages, and school districts are expected to seek approval of tax levies that would boost the rates.

Notice of intention to submit levies and bond issues must be filed with the board of elections by Sept. 20, the auditor said, and after that date tax officials will have an idea about the number of rate changes that may be necessary.

Shelby schools are expected to ask renewal of a three-mill operating levy, while the Sharon township school district will submit a proposed two-mill levy, and the city of Mansfield may ask voters to approve a one-mill operating levy.

Tax rates are determined by the operating and debt requirements and are established by the county auditor after levies and bond issues have been voted or turned down.

KNOX SUPPORTS DRAFT MEASURE

Declares United States Now Faces Serious Crisis If England Loses.

The show-down will come on the compromise proposal of Senator Maloney (D., Conn.) to defer conscription until it was proven that voluntary enlistments could not produce the necessary army manpower by Jan. 1.

At the opening of the fourth day of the draft bill debate, administration leaders disclosed that an informal canvas had shown that, with the exception of the ten uncommitted legislators, the senate was almost evenly divided on the Maloney proposal.

The leaders said there was a margin of "two or three" votes against the Maloney measure among those senators whose views were known.

They conceded that the result would be "close" in any event, and were not optimistic about reaching a vote before next week.

Once the Maloney proposal has been rejected or accepted, it was predicted that the conscription bill would win final senate approval, inasmuch as the Maloney compromise provides that registration go forward pending the showing made by a further trial of voluntary enlistments.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, told reporters he expected Burke-Wadsworth bill opponents to reach their peak strength on that ballot. In debate to date, anti-conscriptionists have argued that the army can get all the volunteers it needs, while proponents of the draft have maintained that the voluntary system was inadequate for the present emergency.

While the senate disputed the draft, the house opened consideration of senate-approved legislation empowering the president to call out the national guard and the regular army reservists for a year's active training. Leaders hoped to complete action in two days.

Delay, however, materialized for another item related to the defense program—the proposed excess profits tax. Chairman Doughton (D. N. C.) of the house ways and means committee said that because of technical difficulties in drafting the tax provisions, the bill would not be ready for the house floor before Monday. He added, however, that he expected house approval by the end of next week.

The name of Wendell Willkie was injected into the draft discussion last night by Senator Johnson (D. Colo.), who declared in a pencilled statement that the Republican presidential nominee held the fate of compulsory conscription "in the hollow of his hand."

A conscription foe, Johnson said a Willkie pronouncement against the draft in his acceptance speech next Saturday would make the subject a "dead issue."

"If Willkie straddles the issue," he added, "congress will follow suit by adopting some such straddling amendment as the Maloney proposal."

In the course of debate yesterday, Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) told the senate that adoption of a draft for the United States would give Hitler "his greatest and cheapest victory to date."

To make the Burke-Wadsworth bill law, he said, would "slit the throat" of the last remaining democracy. He charged that the army sought to "saddle" conscription on the nation."

The army high command meanwhile disclosed to the house military committee that delay in adopting conscription had forced postponement of the general staff's plans to have 900,000 men under arms this October.

CARPENTER AGAIN NOMINATED TO JOURNALISM 'HALL OF FAME'

Frank G. Carpenter, native of Mansfield and a writer of note, again has been nominated to the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame by the school of journalism, Ohio State University.

Voting will take place this month among the editors of the state and the three newspaper men elected will be announced at a dinner given in Columbus in the fall. Nominations, made through the school of journalism, come from newspaper people of the state.

The three men elected must have done the greater part of their newspaper work for Ohio papers, and must have been deceased for at least five years.

Carpenter was born in this city in 1855 and died in 1924. He began his newspaper work on the Cleveland Leader and later was a Washington correspondent for Ohio newspapers. As a world traveler he wrote many articles on his travels.

The only Mansfield newspaper man ever to be elected to the Ohio journalism Hall of Fame, was the late W. S. Cappeller, founder of the Mansfield News.

REPORTED VITT PLANS TO QUIT

'Win, Lose or Draw' Decision Stands at Season's End, Friends Relate.

(By International News Service)

DETROIT—Oscar Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians, has told friends he will retire at the end of this year, "Win, lose or draw," the Detroit Times said today. The Indians are currently two games out in front in the American League pennant chase.

The Times added:

"Vitt, like his friends, feels that he has been shamefully treated by his players. He smiles and laughs but inside he has been deeply hurt by the 'rebellion' of Hal Trosky, Bob Feller, Rollie Hemsley and others on the club who complained to the Cleveland club about Vitt's management."

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland baseball club, said today he knew "absolutely nothing" of a report published in Detroit that Oscar Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians, would retire at the end of the season, "Win, lose or draw."

Bradley, the man who would offer Vitt his contract for the 1941 season, said:

"I know absolutely nothing about it."

Vitt could not be reached at once.

The Detroit story stated that Vitt was deeply hurt at the "rebellion" of most of the leading players of the Indians two months ago. After the players went to Bradley with their complaint, the club president said he would investigate.

He has announced no result from the investigation.

At the time of the "rebellion" the Indians were a game and a half out of first place. Today they lead the American League by two games.

EX-BIG LEAGUER TAKES OWN LIFE

Charley Hollocher Was Chicago Cubs Star Shortstop.

ST LOUIS—(AP)—The body of a man identified as Charles J. Hollocher, former outstanding shortstop with the Chicago Cubs, was found lying beside his automobile parked near a busy west side boulevard early today. A new 16-gauge shotgun was found lying beneath one arm.

A note on the dashboard of the car said: "Call Mrs. Ruth Hollocher." Mrs. Hollocher was his wife. He had been married twice.

After six years with the Cubs, Hollocher quit baseball in 1923 at the height of his career, presumably because of ill health.

ISSUE APPROVED

Phone Company Authorized to Sell Common Stock.

The state utilities commission today authorized the Mansfield Telephone company to issue and sell 13,115 shares of no-par common stock.

LeRoy Wittemire, manager of the company, said the stock would sell at $23.25 a share. Proceeds would be used to reimburse the company's treasury for $304,931 of uncapitalized, capital improvement expenditures as of Aug. 31, 1939.

He explained that the improvements included those made during the 37-month period preceding last August, consisting chiefly of new underground equipment and construction of the Woodland subexchange.

Girl Remembers Point at Which She Forgot All

COLUMBUS—(AP)—An attractive 16-year-old "mystery" girl who had puzzled police since she was found, apparently drugged, in a west side field four days ago, was identified by her mother today as Bonnie Marie Collins of Drift, Ky.

Although she steadfastly told police that she could remember neither her name nor her address, the girl broke down at University hospital when her mother, Mrs. Evelyn Taylor of Taylor, Ky., appeared, and sobbed:

"I'm ready to go home now, mother."

Questioned by her shaken parent, the girl said she remembered nothing after drinking a bottle of pop while on her way to the home of her father, Gervell Collins, in Prichard, W. Va.

"I was with a fellow named 'Red' and another girl I know in Prichard," the girl said. "Then I didn't know anything more until I got here."

Hospital attaches, who described her condition as "poor, but not critical," said she could not be returned home immediately.

CITY PREPARES TO ASK BIDS ON $8,200 PROGRAM

Contracts to Launch Work on Important Sewer Project, Engineer Says.

Contracts for $8,200 worth of city improvements are expected to be let by Sept. 1, and one of the important sanitary sewer schedules of the year started soon after, according to City Engineer W. C. Statler.

Bids will be asked within a few days on the sanitary sewers for Park avenue west from Linden road west to the top of the hill; Glenback lane and Taylor road from Overlook to Cline. Taylor road formerly was Lawnview avenue. These projects will cost about $6,700, Statler said.

Grading of Lind avenue, from Ohio street to Albert avenue, will cost about $1,500. All of this work, Statler said, will be done on contracts.

Four sanitary sewers, on Bernard avenue, Coleman road, Euclid avenue and Sloane avenue, have just been completed at a total cost of $5,000.

Lines Completed.

New water lines, in various sections of the city, have been completed under one schedule of the summer program. In this group are the lines on Braeburn road from Woodhill to Woodland; Overlook road from Crescent to Andover; Andover road from Overlook to Forest Hill; Marlowe road, south from Maple street; East Raleigh avenue; Jeanette avenue from Arch to Greenlawn; a portion of Greenlawn and Cleveland avenues; Fairlawn, from Highland to Overlook avenue, and a stretch on Overlook avenue.

Statler said this schedule, costing $6,000 represented the water line work from the beginning of the summer up to date.

Paroled By Court Here, Faces New Charge In Cincy

John J. Sesler, formerly of 443 Springmill street, arrested here March 4 in connection with the attempted shooting of a taxi driver, was back in custody today in Cincinnati.

Sheriff E. P. Long went to Cincinnati today to return Sesler for violation of his probation, after he had been notified by federal authorities that Sesler had been arrested by them in Cincinnati. They indicated that if he isn't required to serve his original sentence here he is to be returned to them. The message didn't state on what charge he had been picked up.

Sesler was arrested here last March after an altercation at a night club in which Adam Karbula, taxi driver, escaped a bullet fired from Sesler's gun. The two had quarrelled over attentions being paid the latter's wife.

Judge Huston sentenced Sesler on a charge of shooting with intent to wound, but placed him on probation.

other communities in the county that he was satisfied to let the "local authorities handle their own affairs."

The men he questioned, he said, were not now directly connected with the numbers racket in Mansfield, but were "familiar with its operations." One man, he admitted, formerly had been directly connected with operating the racket.

Asked whether he would call in the man who is generally credited with being head of the numbers game in Mansfield, Marriott said he didn't "see any necessity for it."

The brief investigation grew out of a charge last Thursday in Norwalk, by a youth arrested there, that Mansfield was headquarters of the racket as operated in Norwalk.

Rex F. Bracy, prosecutor of Huron county, announced publicly that he would clean the racket out of his county even if he had to "reach over into Mansfield to do it."

Marriott talked to Bracy last Saturday and said later that "Bracy didn't know very much about it."

BUCYRUS—Frank Brecourt, sentenced from Crawford county for rape was among those granted paroles from Ohio State penitentiary by the state pardon and parole board this week. The parole will be effective March 1, 1941.

Lady In Gold

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

EVEN though it's been a little too warm this week again to think very seriously of fall clothes, I just can't resist telling you about a very smart dress I saw while downtown shopping yesterday. . . . Made of gauze duplex crepe, it is fashioned with the style-right front fullness in a panel of red and green crepe that falls from a long basque line. . . . The neckline of the gown features gathered insertions of the red and green material too—highlighted by a gold pin.

Some of the newest fall jewelry is being displayed this week, and you really should go shopping to see it. . . . Massive metals are leading in popularity with pins, clips, bracelets, buckles and pendants of gold and silver. . . . Many of these have open work carving, while others are brightened with stones of all colors. . . . An interesting feature of a number of the pendants is that they can be removed from their chains and used as clips, and for the first time in many years, choker necklaces are being shown. . . . Something a bit unusual in the way of pendants and clips are those made of a twist of lustrous gold metal with a spray of rhinestone "flowers." Leaf motifs have been used in much of the costume jewelry for fall, and some sets are made entirely of clusters of leaves, combining yellow and pink gold with silver. . . . A quaint note for any costume can be obtained from those Swedish Miss necklaces, bracelets and pins—made of antique silver, they are of the charm bracelet variety with tiny replicas of all the home implements used in the Alps.

* * *

Night robes for fall have taken on added glory, indeed. One of the smartest, as well as the most comfortable looking house coats I saw in a local shop yesterday was made of spun rayon with wide girdle and cuffs of multi-colored knitted material and floor-length zipper. . . . In case you're looking for a more dressy robe, you'll find nothing prettier than one of quilted white satin, brightened with hipline pockets and collar of red quilted satin and a bright red zipper extending all the way down the front. . . . A new note on a black taffeta housecoat I was looking at yesterday was roman striped chenille—on the wide revers and flaring hip pockets. . . . Lounging pajamas are being shown for fall too, and an especially attractive pair combined black satin trousers (each leg being almost as wide as a full floor-length skirt) with a tunic coat of black satin, brightened with a red woven design.

* * *

ONE of the leading nail polish manufacturers—famous for long-wearing nail enamel and smart ideas—has come through again with a very special kit—the "Bagpiper." This kit, which is as jaunty as a tam-o'-shanter, is done up in bright clan plaids, red or blue in soft, spun rayon serge. It's as compact as a man's wallet, and yet it holds all the essentials for perfectly groomed nails. . . . A canny buy as well as a pretty one, the "Bagpiper" costs even less than the regular price of the products it contains—your favorite shade of polish, oily polish remover, cuticle lotion, file, orangewood stick and emery boards, each in its own tidy niche. . . . Oh yes, and this same company has just introduced a new nail fix for split or broken nails. . . . All you need do is apply the liquid above, below and across the damaged area in a thin layer, then place a bit of tissue over it and allow to dry. . . . After you apply another thin layer of the fix over the tissues, whisk away any roughened surface with an emery board and apply your nail enamel.

Although we've devoted most of our talk today to new things for fall, most all of us are just now acquiring our summer tans, and so of course we'll want to be using the right shades of make-up to harmonize with them. The most flattering powders are Summer Tan, Ocre, Rico Tan, Tamale, Miami and New Tan, while lip and cheek rouges are Rico Red, Candy Cane, Burnt Sugar, Redhead and Miami and Tamale. . . . Special powder foundations for tanned complexions include Lily lotion, Town and Country make-up film and lotion and suntan shades.

COUPLE WED AT MARION RECTORY

Miss Margaret Clapsaddle and Albert L. Yuncker Exchange Vows; Traveling Through Quebec, Montreal and Adirondacks.

TWO MANSFIELDERS, Miss Margaret Clapsaddle and Albert L. Yuncker, were united in marriage at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning in the St. Mary rectory at Marion. Rev. Father William J. Spickerman, pastor of St. Mary church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

For the ceremony Miss Clapsaddle chose a smart white shirtmaker dress. The yoke was accented with fine tucks and unpressed pleats lent fullness to the skirt in front. Her belt was of blue grosgrain ribbon and she wore a soldier blue felt hat. An orchid in orchid shade completed her costume.

Miss Hazel Clapsaddle, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a tailored white costume with a black felt hat and a corsage of gardenias.

Leo Yuncker of this city served his brother as best man.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast in the presidential suite at Hotel Harding. Gladioli in pastel colors decorated the table which was lighted with tall white candles. Covers were placed for the bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Yuncker, Mrs. James Hoppe, Mrs. Charles Zitzer and Mrs. Charles Pittinger of this city, Rev. Father Spickerman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cahill, Miss Clapsaddle and William Lusch.

When the couple left on a motor trip which will take them through the Adirondacks and to Montreal and Quebec, the new Mrs. Yuncker donned a brown and white chiffon reddingote costume with which she wore white accessories. They will be at home after Sept. 1, in their newly-furnished home at 25 Raleigh avenue.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Clapsaddle of Marion. She was graduated from Harding high school, the American College of Physical Education in Chicago and Ohio Wesleyan university. She has been director of girl's physical education at Mansfield Senior high school for a number of years.

Mr. Yuncker is the son of Mrs. Gertrude Yuncker of 815 Park avenue west. He attended St. Peter high school and is associated with the Yuncker Brothers sport goods store.
